LEWIS ASSAILS THIRD TERM

CIO Chief Sees Defeat For F.D.R. If He Runs

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24 (AP)—John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, declared today that should the Democratic national convention "be coerced or dragooned" into renominating President Roosevelt "his candidacy would result in ignominious defeat."

The statement of Lewis was made unexpectedly before the United Mine Workers of America convention. He asserted it would be "unwise at this time" to make any presidential endorsements but suggested that the executive board be empowered to take up the matter at the proper time.

The UMW president accused the Democratic party of "failing to keep faith with labor." He expressed belief that President Roosevelt probably would not be a candidate for re-nomination.

Lewis asserted that in 1936 organized labor furnished money, speakers, party workers and millions of votes to help return the Democratic party to power.

"A political coalition presupposes a post-election good faith between the coallescent interests," he added.

"The Democratic party and its leadership have not preserved its faith."

"In the last three years, labor has not been given representation in the Cabinet, nor in the administrative or policy making agencies of government."

"The current administration has not sought nor seriously entertained the advice or views of

BRITISH DESTROYER EXMOUTH, SUNK BY TORPEDO OR MINE

DICTATORSHIP FOR HER?

MAY BECOME RULER—In Pittsburgh, Pa., where she stopped on a lecture tour, the Ranees of Sarawak revealed there is a "distinct possibility" that her daughter, the Countess of Inchcape (above) might become dictator of Sarawak. Recent ousting by the Rajah of his nephew, heir presumptive to the throne, makes this possible.

EXMOUTH'S ENTIRE CREW LOSE LIVES

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Sinking of the British destroyer Exmouth by a torpedo or mine in the North Sea with loss of all hands—nearly 200 men—was reported by the admiralty today on the 25th anniversary of the World War battle of Dogger Bank.

It was the fifth destroyer and 23rd British naval vessel acknowledged as sunk since the present war with Germany began Sept. 3. In many homes of the Exmouth's crew, the news came as the men's arrival on leave was expected. The families had received letters only Monday.

One woman stayed up all last night, awaiting her husband's return early today. Instead, she received the Admiralty's notice that he was believed dead.

The Exmouth usually carried 175 men, but wartime crews usually are increased about 10 per cent. A 1475-ton vessel, built in 1934, the Exmouth was a flotilla leader, carrying five 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns, and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The sinking was the first in which not a man was reported saved. She was the same class as the Greenville, destroyer which sank Saturday with a loss of 81 lives.

Other destroyer losses were the Blanche and Gipsy, which struck mines November 22, and the Duchesne, which sank in a collision with another warship December 13.

The Exmouth's commander, Capt. R. S. Benson, received the distinguished service order only last month for "successful action against enemy submarines."

Bombs Kill Finn Invalids

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

HELSINKI, Jan. 24 (INS)—Doctors, nurses and invalids were among 31 persons killed in hospital shelters during Soviet Russian air attacks on the Finnish towns of Nurmee and Hyrnsalmi, according to reports received in Helsinki today.

The raids were carried out as part of a general Russian aerial offensive that rained bombs on 10 separate Finnish districts.

Finnish forces claimed that 10 buildings were destroyed by the Russian forces, who dropped 400 bombs, only to have nine of their bombers shot down.

The casualties resulted from direct hits on the shelters. It was stated.

1000 REDS SLAIN

Meanwhile, the Finnish high command claimed military successes on the eastern frontier north of Lake Ladoga, including the killing of 1000 Russian troops.

This afternoon it appeared that operations just north of Lake Ladoga were assuming the proportions of a major battle with the Russians doing everything in their power to advance in a far-flung maneuver aimed at outflanking the Mannerheim line.

So far, it was reported, the Finns have successfully resisted the latest Russian drive.

On the Salla front to the north fighting was still in progress and it was indicated the Russians were retreating skillfully, thereby preventing the Finns from encircling and trapping the Soviet forces.

(An official war communiqué issued in Moscow said patrols were active in the Ikhta and Repola sectors and that some infantry activity occurred in the Petrosavodsk region, along with artillery fire and patrol activity on the Karelian Isthmus.)

Russian planes, the bulletin added, carried out reconnaissance and combat flights.)

BOMB HITS HIDEOUT

Details of the air raids revealed that the casualties and damage were relatively unimportant save at Nurmee and Hyrnsalmi. In the former town, situated near the eastern Finnish frontier, 19 persons were killed when the shelter was struck by a bomb and all the re-

Hint Radio Play Led to SOS Hoax

Possibility that a radio dramatization program based on a ship disaster might have led to the false report of an S O S which sent Coast Guard vessels scurrying last night off Cape Cod was considered today by authorities.

Several residents of Marthas Vineyard, where retired army Capt. Byron C. Brown, 48, reported hearing an S O S from a ship supposedly sinking off the Cape, said they had listen to a "ship tragedy" at the same time Brown said he heard the distress call.

The retired officer was arrested on drunkenness charges by State Police.

In district court at Edgartown today he was convicted and his case was continued for one week for disposition.

Nazi Air Raid Over Shetlands

LONDON, Jan. 24 (INS)—For the first time in weeks, German bombs were reported dropped on British soil today.

Three enemy planes flew over the Shetland Islands, target of a number of attacks early in the war, necessitating an air raid alarm that lasted for 30 minutes.

British pursuit planes went aloft to drive off the attackers.

Six bombs were dropped, it was believed, but no damage was immediately reported.

The R. A. F. planes failed to contact the invaders, which dodged behind high clouds and disappeared.

During the attack, one of the German planes dived toward a steamer moored at a wharf but did not attack the vessel.

Newton Orphan Ends His Life by Hanging

A 12-year-old orphan boy hanged himself in the bedroom of his Newton home today. The lifeless body of Kenneth Clark, sprawled in grotesque fashion, was found lying by an open closet door. Medical Examiner Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher said the boy had knotted a short length of rope about his neck, tied the other end to the knob of the closet door, and had let himself fall.

His legs lay along the floor, Dr. Gallagher said, but the rope held up his head and upper body till he strangled.

The child made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Charles W. Peterson, and her husband, the latter a teacher in Newton High school.

FINDS BOY HANGED

Last night Kenneth attended a meeting of his Boy Scout troop, where he had learned to tie Scout knots.

At 3 a. m. today, police said, officers in a cruising car passed the boy's home and noticed a light burning in his window, but they saw nothing that might prompt them to investigate.

Going into the room to call the boy for breakfast, Mrs. Peterson found the body.

APPEARED TO BE HAPPY

His mother and father died about seven years ago, and he had lived with the Petersons in California at ever since.

Police and firemen were called to the scene, and with artificial respiration oxygen and an inhalator officers worked over him for more than two hours.

It was all in vain.

No reason for his act could be imagined, his almost-hysterical aunt declared. She said he appeared to be perfectly happy, and had been getting along very well at school. The boy attended the Frank A. Day school, where he was an honor pupil.

PARAGUAY EX-ENVOY DIES

Hub Girl to Drive War Ambulance

Planning to sail to France, Feb. 28, Miss Susan Hammond of Dartmouth st., Back Bay, was revealed today as the first woman from Boston signed to drive an ambulance in the war zones of Europe.

She volunteered for the service after the Friends of France announced they had places for several girls who could drive ambulances.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Hammond, prominent in North Shore society. Her volunteering followed an address here last week by Miss Anne Morgan of New York, who came to Boston to speak before the local branch of the organization.

Several ambulance groups are being organized by Miss Morgan and her associates.

Call Ex-Solon In Dog Probe

In the federal grand jury probe of alleged income tax evasion by five officials of the Bay State Greyhound Ass'n, Inc., former State Rep. William F. Dwyer of Brighton was called as a witness today.

A report was also current at the federal building that another former prominent Massachusetts legislator may be called before the grand jury.

Other witnesses examined today were Mary E. and Eleanor A. Dwyer of Washington st., Brighton, and Louis G. Ledwick, also of Washington st., Brighton.

George H. Leamy of the Intelligence Unit of the Treasury Dept., and Asst. U. S. Atty. Henry M. Leach, entered the grand jury room with a mass of documentary evidence.

Also before the grand jury are the books and records of the dog track association, which were summoned by the federal investigators. Today marked the third day of the grand jury probe and the jury's report is expected by Saturday.

SNOW ON WINGS OF GALE HERE

Snow whirled down on Boston today on the wings of a sea-gale out of the northeast and was forecast as likely to continue through the night.

Storm warnings were flying from Eastport to Sandy Hook, with conditions at sea reported hazardous for coastwise shipping.

Founded by floating ice, the lighter-dredge Stanford sank in Hull gut today as it was being towed from Quincy to the Army Base, South Boston, by the tug Melrose.

MAN RESCUED

Austin Bennett, 40, on board the lighter, had a narrow escape but was rescued by the Melrose, which came alongside the foundering lighter and took him off in the nick of time.

The sunken hulk of the lighter was reported as constituting a serious menace to navigation, its stubby masts being just out of sight in Hull gut at high water. Army engineers were notified and plans were made to dynamite or otherwise remove the wreck.

The disturbance becoming central here reached New England after sweeping a destructive course across the Eastern United States all the way from the Gulf of Mexico.

GALES OFF COAST

Blinding blizzards, howling gales and rough water were reported today off Hatteras and Nantuxet.

The Boston forecaster's best guess at the probable extent of the snowfall here was that it would be "moderate."

Throughout the State, however, highway officials ordered trucks and plows ready to deal with at least a six-inch fall.

Temperatures remained substantially below freezing throughout New England today, ranging from 21 in Boston to six above zero at

Md. Nurse Lost In Blizzard

SALISBURY, Md., Jan. 24 (AP)—Miss Catherine O'Neill, registered mid wife nurse, was unreported today after leaving Salisbury in a blizzard to deliver a baby at Siloam, eight miles from here.

The county health office asked the state roads commission to send a rotary snow plow in search of Miss O'Neill, believed marooned in an automobile about two miles from Siloam. One rescue car which tried to reach her was forced back by deep drifts.

Radio stations were asked to broadcast news of her plight in hope nearby farmers would be able to break through to her.

Girl Breaks Jail Fast, Is Freed

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24 (AP)—Kay Lue, 22-year-old Billings, Mont., girl, broke her four-day hunger strike by eating breakfast today and then pleaded guilty to petit larceny.

The girl was placed on probation after Ed Love, assistant detective chief, told the court the girl's parents had sent money for her return home. She was accused of taking a pistol from a home where she had been employed as a maid. She came here four months ago to be near a gentleman friend enrolled at a COG camp.

N. E. Acclaim Trails Dewey to Maine

SEEKS TOP POST

Flushed with hope after the greatest reception since he became an avowed presidential candidate, Thomas E. Dewey, "racket-busting" New York district attorney, bade goodbye to Boston today and was off to woo Republicans in Maine.

The man who aspires to reshuffle the New Deal and unsettle President Roosevelt—or, possibly both—arose early for a few last minute conferences with new friends and old among Massachusetts Republicans.

He stopped briefly in a visit to the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation and then was off to entrain for Portland.

Quite frankly, he confessed that his welcome in Boston had exceeded his fondest hopes.

CHEERED BY 8000

From a sincere, but reserved welcome here, he saw enthusiasm grow to a crescendo reached by more than 8000 cheering Republicans in Mechanics Building.

Spurred on by the acclaim, he lashed out at New Deal spending and made a special appeal to the youthful new voters in the nation. The first New England invasion by Dewey will, soon be repeated, it was predicted today by Republican leaders who still are carefully considering other candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

The crowd in Mechanics Building overflowed into the street long before the hour for Dewey's speech. They heard an attack centered on New Deal spending and promises that prosperity could be achieved only with "a balanced budget."

WHAT IT MEANS

Constantly emphasizing the spending and the huge increase in the national debt Dewey sought to bring it home to his local audience with this example:

"Take New England. It is a

HAILED—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York shakes hand of woman admirer after his speech before 8000 at Mechanics Building. At right is Lt.-Gov. Cahill.

great industrial region. If all the industrial workers of New England gave up all their earnings to the United States government, it would take them eight years to supply as much money as the government spends in one year. "We talk about an annual expenditure of nine billion dollars and a national debt of 42 billion dollars. I don't know any way to bring such amounts within our comprehension. Nobody ever saw nine billion dollars. If I started to count it at a dollar a second, it would take 288 years."

Dewey warned that when money is being spent at the rate of $17,500 a minute and more than $1,000,000 there must sometime come a day of tragic reckoning, especially when income provides only 55 cents of every dollar spent. The rest, he said is made up by borrowing.

"BUDGET ALIBI"

Then he switched to New Deal failure to balance the budget, saying:

"Let us look at the New Deal alibi for its unbalanced budget. The alibi is that recovery and relief monies keep the budget unbalanced. But look at the last completed fiscal year. All the money spent on relief plus the money dissipated in the spending program, together amounted to $3,100,000,000. Taking that from the total expense of $9,300,000,000 you still have $6,200,000,000 left for other expenses of the government."

"Do the same thing to the first New Deal year which ended in 1934 and the other expenses were only $3,600,000,000, wholly aside from the relief and the spending program. That is a net increase of $2,600,000,000. There goes the alibi."

Restore the flow of private capital, choked by the spending spree, transform unemployment into employment, relief into jobs, was Dewey's prescription for the restoration of prosperity.

2 Women Saved In Fitchburg Fire

FITCHBURG, Jan. 24—Firemen rescued two women today as flames swept a two-story building, spread to a large grocery storehouse and filled adjoining buildings with smoke in the center of the business district on Main st.

The building destroyed was occupied by the Kimball Clothing Co. Behind it, the warehouse of Brockleman Bros., grocery concern, was heavily damaged.

Miss Helen M. Pratt and Mary J. O'Hara, residents in the near-by Lucier block, were taken to the street by firemen after smoke had trapped them. They were taken to Burbank Hospital to be treated for smoke inhalation and frostbite.

BROWDER FILES FOR CONGRESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (AP)—A 5441-signature petition naming Earl Browder the Communist candidate for Representative from the 14th Congressional district was filed a few hours after he served notice of appeal from his passport fraud conviction.

Browder's opponents in the special election Feb. 6 for the post left vacant by the late William Sirovich will be M. Michael Edelstein, Tammany leader, and former Justice Louis J. Lefkowitz, Republican nominee.

An objection to Browder's name on the ballot was filed by one Lambert Fairchild, who protested the Communist's petition did not correctly describe the election district; that the Communist party was a "dues-paying, secret society," and that Browder "has avowedly subordinated himself to all decisions of Communist International, an alien organization whose open intent is to destroy our form of government and all established religion."

NEW GANG NOW HEADS POOL RING

BULLETIN

Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford of Middlesex County today announced that he was sending to Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty all information developed in his investigation of the $3,000,000 number pool syndicate which showed connection between the pool operators and police officials who gave them protection.

As 15 leaders in a $3,000,000 number pool racket today began jail sentences of from one month to one year, a new group of operators "moved into" the Greater Boston territory and began signing up the agents and runners who formerly worked for Joseph "Hooda" Hotze, named as the "master mind" in the gigantic organization which came to grief in Middlesex County.

At the East Cambridge jail Hotze and his 14 associates were being examined by the jail physician, Dr. Crawford K. Swezey, while on the outside their leaderless workers were frantically scrambling for pieces of the wrecked pool empire.

WARNS PATROLMEN

Taking direct action to stand off any attempt to set up headquarters in Cambridge, Chief of Police Timothy F. Leahy summoned all captains and lieutenants to his headquarters office and warned them no leniency toward number pool operators would be tolerated.

In East Cambridge district court he asked a jail sentence for Anthony Martin, 40, of Third St., East Cambridge, who was found guilty of having pool tickets in his possession.

Martin's case was continued to Jan. 27 for disposition in order to give police time for further investigation.

W. LEAHY IS LEADER

Who the new chief of operations will be was undecided today, but it was learned that a woman operator was in the running to head the group which will take over the pool business in the Greater Boston area.

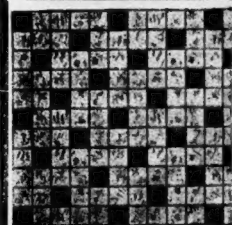

A temporary office was set up and district "turn in" places established by the group whom Hotze opposed in 1935 when the syndicate was first organized in Suffolk County.

His former agents and runners were being hired to continue the business with their regular customers.

In the South End, Roxbury and Mattapan districts Hotze's enemies moved swiftly after his conviction and the refusal of Judge Frederick

House in Another Economy Wangle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—The House went back to its intermittent wrangle over Federal economy today after giving the Dies Committee authority to investigate un-American activities for another year.

The $1,032,000,000 appropriation bill for the Treasury and Post-office Departments was called up for debate, with economy advocates trying to add further cuts to the $13,491,000 reduction made by the appropriations committee.

The Senate was in recess after spending most of yesterday arguing over a $200,000 fund for Army land purchases in Puerto Rico. It will vote tomorrow on the $247,000,000 bill for emergency defense and neutrality expenses, including the Puerto Rican land.

The Dies committee won its extension in the House yesterday, 355 to 23. The next step will be an authorization for funds. One informant predicted the House would allow $75,000 for the year's inquiry, although he added it was possible that the figure might be raised to $100,000.

Despite the overwhelming vote for the investigation, the committee was sharply criticized during the brief House debate. Opponents charged it with being unfair in its procedure.

Rep. Marcantonio (AL) of New York, who fought the extension, told the chamber:

"You can vote against the unemployed or against labor's magazine, but if you're against Communism you are all right."

Rep. Thomas (R) of New Jersey, on the other hand, suggested that history would credit the Dies committee with being a force in keeping this country from totalitarianism.

Rep. Starnes (D) of Ala., like Thomas, a member of the committee, pleaded that the light of committee publicity be further shined upon "subversive influences," which he said were attempting to undermine the United States.

INDIANA EDUCATOR DIES

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24 (AP)—Dr. James W. Putnam, 75, president emeritus of Butler University here, died in a hospital. Illness forced his retirement.

Ex-Constable Guilty, Appeals

A former Norwood town constable was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in Dedham district court today after he had been convicted on two counts of violating the election laws. Joseph S. Phillips, 25, of Folan st., Norwood, had pleaded not guilty to three counts and was found guilty on two, not guilty on one.

He appealed the sentence imposed by Judge Clifford B. Sanborn and was held in $1500 for trial in superior court.

At the same time Judge Sanborn issued a capias for John J. Bennett, another ex-Norwood constable, to appear in court and show why he should not be held in contempt for failing to answer a summons in the case.

Newton Man Quizzed In Attack on Woman

Captured after a chase, a 45-year-old Newton man was held for questioning today in connection with a brutal beating suffered by Mrs. Laura Holmes, 52, of Commonwealth ave., Allston.

Her screams brought cruising car officers Neil McDevitt and Charles McCarthy to her aid. They found her lying semi-conscious in an alley off Royce rd., Allston, in the rear of her home. At City Hospital, doctors said she had sustained cuts and bruises and a slight concussion of the brain.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 24—Leo Parker, unemployed WPA worker, and his wife, Dorothy, today were reported recovering at Farrington hospital after being poisoned by contaminated meat.

Everybody Is Hot When They Talk About Cold!

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—It's an old American custom—the colder the weather the hotter it becomes as a conversation piece.

When the mercury does a national nose dive, people get into discussions and arguments which lead to wagers and wrangles.

The weather bureau in Washington is of course, the last court of appeal for all climatic disputes.

Right now the raging question is: What is the lowest temperature ever recorded in the United States, when was it registered, and where was it registered?

The answer is: 86 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit), at Riverside Ranger Station, Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Feb. 9, 1933.

Here are some other questions—with their answers—that have come up for settlement:

Is there a state which never has experienced zero weather? No. Florida comes the closest with only two below. Which state has had colder weather, South Carolina or Louisiana? This is a trick question because South Carolina, which is considerably farther north than Louisiana, has seen the mercury at 13 below, while the Pelican State has had it down to 18 below.

Which has been colder, Maine or New Mexico? The answer is—neither. It's been 48 below in both Texas or Delaware? Texas, by six degrees.

Rhode Island or Alabama? Both have had recordings of 18 below.

Frozen yet? If you are, how about something on the country's hottest weather? The 1913 record at Death Valley, Cal., still stands—134 degrees.

BRITAIN TO WEIGH BREAK WITH REDS

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain, asked in Commons today if Britain would break off relations with Russia, replied that such a move "would require most careful consideration in all its aspects."

Maj. Gen. Alfred William Forrester asked the question in view of Russia's invasion of Finland.

Such a decision, the prime minister said, "is not one to be dealt with satisfactorily in questions and answers."

PARLEY WITH ITALY

The prime minister did not answer Knox's further question, "Would not the course suggested (a break with Russia) be logically and morally right and is it not likely that it would be politically sound and would give courage to wavering neutrals?"

Chamberlain assured the House that Britain would not had diplomatic relations with Germany. "It is not likely that it would be politically sound and would give courage to wavering neutrals."

The prime minister said that Britain and Italy were exchanging military and naval information and that the exchange would be completed before the end of the month.

DISCUSS BELGIUM

The prime minister enumerated treaties and declarations from 1912 to August, 1929, in which Britain undertook "to go to the immediate assistance of Belgium in event of unprovoked aggression by Germany."

Chamberlain added that the question of how the guarantee could be implemented if the need arose was receiving the full attention of the government.

Japs Plan Curb On British Navy

TOKYO, Jan. 24 (INS)—Amid rapidly mounting anti-British sentiment throughout Japan, naval and foreign office authorities today fully discussed drastic measures to be taken regarding British naval activities in the Pacific ocean.

Japanese officials went into action swiftly in the wake of formal representations to London against seizure of 21 German seamen from the Japanese liner Asama Maru by a British cruiser.

At the same time Tokyo was informed that an unidentified warship halted the Japanese luxury liner Tatuta Maru near Honolulu. Passengers aboard the Nippon Maru were examined, according to this information, but no Germans were seized.

Hard fighting was still reported in progress along the 50-mile front north of Lake Ladoga, where Russian counter-attacks were claimed to have been repulsed with heavy losses. In addition, the Finns said, they destroyed many Soviet tanks and captured a number of Russian positions.

Especially hard fighting raged in the Kollanjoki sector, where the Finns advanced along a single railway. It was there that the 1000 Russians were claimed to have perished under the Finnish onslaught.

French Blamed For Orazio Loss

ROME, Jan. 24 (AP)—Il Popolo

D'Italia, Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, today published a Genoa dispatch blaming the French for the loss of 116 aboard the Italian liner Orazio because the French navy halted the ship four hours to release 12 German passengers.

The dispatch called the delay "fatal," asserting that otherwise the Orazio "would have been able to reach Barcelona and save all her passengers." The Orazio was en route to South America via Barcelona.

Death Toll on Orazio May Total 100

GENOA, Jan. 24 (AP)—A check-up on the number of survivors from the burned Italian liner Orazio left at least 32 persons unaccounted for today, and Italian radio officials expected the total might reach 100.

Moslem League Is Mobilizing

BOMBAY, Jan. 24 (INS)—Leaders of India's Moslem League, second most powerful political party in the nation, mobilized their strength in an attempt to defeat the county-wide self-rule elections to be staged by the All India National Congress on Friday, Nationalist "Independence Day."

While Moslem League opposition thus loomed as an important factor in the Congress fight for Indian self-rule, a series of other developments on the diplomatic front indicated the crisis between the British government and the Nationalists is fast approaching a climax.

China-Jap Peace Pact Is Claimed

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24 (AP)—As former Chinese Premier Wang Ching Wei denied an oft-postponed crucial conference at Tientsin to promote establishment of a Japanese-approved new central government in China, his followers here disclosed that a "gentlemen's agreement" already has been signed for a peace with Japan.

BORAH FAMOUS AS TRIAL LAWYER

This is the fourth installment of "Borah of Idaho," the life story of the late Senator William E. Borah, who rose from an humble beginning to a position of great eminence in national and world affairs.

The book, copyrighted by Longmans, Green & Co., is written in the present tense because Senator Borah was still living when the volume was completed.

By PROF. CLAUDIUS O. JOHNSON
Of Washington State University

If you ask practically anyone who is over 40 years of age and is not a resident of Idaho how Mr. Borah came to be elected Senator, he will tell you that he was a struggling young prosecuting attorney who won fame and a seat in the United States Senate through his successful prosecution of Big Bill Haywood.

Yet Borah was never a prosecuting attorney except in a few cases in which the state retained him as special counsel.

Eventually he was elected to the Senate six months before he assisted as special prosecutor in the Haywood case.

And Haywood was acquitted. Borah did win national fame for his part in the prosecution, but Haywood won the case.

Yet Borah's part in prosecuting labor leaders for alleged crimes of violence forms a chapter of such interest that it must not be omitted.

The trail of labor-capital violence in Idaho began almost with the opening of the rich silver-lead mines in Northern Idaho in the 'eighties. This area of beautiful wooded hills and narrow valleys is known as the Coeur d'Alenes.

In 1892 there were riots in the Coeur d'Alenes. The companies' armed guards and non-union men fought the union men.

KILLED AND BURNED

On April 29, 1899, several hundred armed men, presumably union men, at the little mining town of Burke, took possession of a train, procured 3000 pounds of dynamite, and forced the train crew to take them to Wardner. There they blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan plant and killed one or two persons. They then boarded the stolen train and rode back to Burke.

The prosecuting attorney of Shoshone County, H. P. Samuels, was an excellent man but a poor lawyer. As he had many friends among the miners he asked to be freed from the duties of prosecutor.

The governor named James H. Hawley, one of Idaho's best lawyers, and W. E. Borah, fast coming to be recognized as having ability equal to Hawley's, to head the prosecution.

Despite his friendship for labor, Borah was perfectly willing to take this part. He regarded the excesses of the Western Federation of Miners as having no rightful place in the program for labor's advancement. With him murder was murder whether committed in the "class struggle" or in accomplishing a robbery.

On the night of Dec. 30, 1905, another crime of violence, one which shocked the whole country, caused Borah to take another special train at Boise. Here Gov. Steunenberg, who had declared martial law in the Coeur d'Alenes in 1899, had lived after his retirement from office a year later, and here he had just been blown to pieces by a bomb attached to his front gate.

A real-estate man in Caldwell told Borah and others to check up on a man registered at the hotel under the name of "Hogan." Borah looked him over and decided that if he were not the man who had committed the murder he was the sort of fellow who would.

A former lieutenant governor of Idaho broke into his room and found dynamite, lead, and other materials for making bombs. "Hogan" was arrested and grilled. He gave his name as Harry Orchard and finally made a most remarkable confession.

CONFESSES SLAYINGS

He said he had been employed over a period of years by Haywood, Moyer, and Pettibone, but especially by Haywood, all of the Western Federation of Miners, to murder mining bosses and others who happened to be enemies of the federation. The 28 murders to which he confessed had all been planned by these men. He was the killer, not the planner.

The problem then was to get the men who were the brains of the crime from Denver, Col. to Idaho, where they could be put on trial.

Borah did not come in as one of the lawyers for the prosecution until after the accused men had been brought to Idaho.

The actual trial did not take place until the summer of 1907. From the early spring of 1906 until after the November election, which ousted Borah a seat in the Senate, the legality of the manner in which the men had been forcibly taken from Colorado was before the courts.

The trial started on May 9 and lasted until July 28. James H. Hawley soon to be elected governor,

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH
As 'Lion of Idaho' Looked in 1920 and Senator-elect Borah were the stars for the prosecution. Harry Orchard was their star witness.

"Well, I have heard the best of them in the country," said Haywood, "but Borah beats them all."

The trial was remarkable in that the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. It has been said that the jurors returned such a verdict in fear of their lives. Possibly this is true.

The general public is much less familiar with the story of Borah's own indictment and trial than it is with the Haywood story. Yet it is hardly less interesting.

BORAH INDICTED

In March, 1907, Sen. Borah and a number of officers of the Barber Lumber Co. were indicted by a federal grand jury for timber frauds.

The men behind Borah's indictment were the leaders of the Republican party machine in Idaho. Some of these had aspired to the place in the Senate to which Borah had just been elected by the Idaho legislature. Others disliked him for temperamental reasons.

Borah's trial opened on Sept. 23 and lasted for 10 days. Practically the entire time was taken up by the prosecution, Counsel for the defense, our old friend James H. Hawley, did not take the trouble to cross-examine the witnesses.

The only witness the defense offered was Borah. The prosecution took nearly two hours to sum up the case. The defense simply said: "We submit the case, your honor."

The jury was out 14 minutes. Its verdict was "not guilty."

Another installment of the life of "The Lion of Idaho" will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Chicago Pays Borah Tribute

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (INS)—With all the simplicity he treasured in life, Sen. William Edgar Borah came to Chicago in death.

Encased in a highly-polished oaken box, the plain gray steel casket containing the mortal remains of "The Lion of Idaho" was quietly transferred from the Grand Central station, where it arrived from Washington aboard the Capitol Limited, to the Northwestern station.

Dignitaries accompanying the body to Boise, Ida., where final funeral services will be held in the State Capitol tomorrow, stood with bared and bowed heads as the casket was placed in a hearse. Hundreds of Chicagoans met the train to pay a final tribute to the "great oppositionist."

Nye to Get Borah's Post, McNary Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—The vacancy on the Senate foreign relations committee caused by the death of Sen. Borah (R.) of Idaho will be filled by Sen. Nye (R.) of North Dakota. The Republican Leader McNary of Oregon said today

Mother of 2 Prays for U. S. Peace

From a Lowell mother came a prayer today as she joined the National Legion of Mothers of America in a pledge to save American sacredness from death on foreign soil.

In her letter, Mrs. Herve E. Cole of 65 Eleventh st., Lowell, wrote: "I have two sons, and I pray that they will not be taken away from me to fight the battles of other nations."

Another mother, Mrs. Jennie McKerray of 206 Pearl st., writes: "I am a mother of seven, and four of them are sons, aged 22, 20, 18 and 15. And I most sincerely oppose our boys being sent away as a sacrifice for those other nations."

"We are 100 per cent Americans and love our country and are ready to stand by it—but not across the waters."

Enclosing the signatures of a group of neighbors who have joined with her in the Legion, a Medford mother of a 21-year-old son writes:

"Here are some signatures of a few of my neighbors who most heartily join in the movement of the Legion of Mothers. We mothers fully appreciate an opportunity to state our opinion on this war subject. We hope and believe it will help in keeping our boys out of this awful war."

Spanked Wife Wins Balm Suit

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP)—A jury today awarded Mrs. Valerie G. R. Porter £3,000 (about $13,800) damages today in her suit charging alienation of the affections of her husband against his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Renfrew Porter. The father, American-born, is managing director of Addressograph-Multigraph, Ltd.

Evidence was presented during the long trial that the husband, Lieut. Bertie Porter, an army officer, once spanked his wife in the presence of his parents.

Testimony also described a scene in which the elder Porter threw his daughter-in-law out of the house.

The defense accused Mrs. Porter of marrying Porter for his money.

FLUSH KIDNEYS OF POISONS AND STOP GETTING UP NIGHTS

Live a Healthier, Happier, Life

Thousands of men and women wonder why backache bothers them—why they have to visit the bathroom often at night—why flow is scanty and sometimes smart and burns. Any one of these symptoms may mean that your kidneys and bladder need attention now before these minor symptoms may develop into serious trouble.

To flush out excess waste poisons and acid from kidneys, soothe your irritated bladder and put more healthy activity into them, get a 35-cent package of GOLD MEDAL HAZELIM Capsules and take as directed.

This harmless, tried and true medicine gives results—you should feel better in a few days, as this effective diuretic and kidney stimulant drives excess uric acid from the body which is often the aggravation of joint aches, sciatica and neuritis.

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal Hazelim Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine right from Hazelim in Holland. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.

Seek Narrow Gauge Stay Until Mar. 31

Winthrop town officials today planned to ask the federal court to defer the closing of the Narrow Gauge railroad to March 31, on which date the Reconstruction Finance Commission will decide the question of re-financing the system.

Herbert S. Avery, counsel for the Winthrop transportation committee, will offer a 17-point plan to keep the railroad functioning for two more months, pending the RFC decision, when Federal Judge George C. Sweeney receives the request.

With scarcely four days left before the scheduled closing Saturday midnight, Frederick L. Crocker, chairman of the Winthrop transportation committee, outlined the 17-point plan at a citizens' meeting last night.

Briefly, the plan would have the town of Winthrop turn over a subsidy to the railroad, order drastic economies and increase the fare in order to keep the road in operation until the end of March.

Temporary bus permits have been prepared so that a private bus company can begin operation within 24 hours in the event that prolongation of service is denied.

Much interest centers on Friday night's town meeting, when the voters for the third time will pass on the so-called Boston Elevated measure, under which the EI would take over the town's transportation. According to Atty. Avery, the 17-point plan would increase revenues $155,000 annually, with further economies of $63,000 from a 6 percent wage cut. The fare would be raised from 10 to 15 cents.

Because the jail sentence came so suddenly it was impossible for the operators to make arrangements for their successors. At present one big money man is being sought in order that the payoffs be insured.

At East Cambridge jail, Dr. Sweezy made an examination of Holze with particular attention to the "chronic nephritis" of which he was said to be a victim when his counsel pleaded to save him from jail.

Sheriff Joseph McElroy expects to get the doctor's report on his new guests by tomorrow. Until then no decision as to what duties will be assigned them will be made. It was learned that many of them will be sent to the Billerica farm, because there is so little work to be assigned at the East Cambridge jail. The Billerica assignment is considered a prize by prisoners.

Meanwhile, Mayor John M. Lynch of Somerville was planning a conference with Dist. Atty. Robert L. Bradford as the result of the latter's charges that the pool was operated with the specific connivance of police.

In Boston no action has yet been taken on Bradford's charges that Holze's empire, which stretched from its Somerville headquarters all the way to the Blue Hills, listed weekly payments to policemen.

labor upon the question of national unemployment or lesser questions affecting domestic economy, internal taxation, foreign trade, military and naval expansion, relations with foreign nations or the issues of war or peace.

"Labor today has no point of contact with the Democratic Administration in power except for casual occasional interviews which are granted its individual leaders.

"In the Congress, the unrestrained habit of naming of labor by the Democratic majority has become a pastime, never subject to rebuke by the titular or actual leaders of the party."

Lewis asserted the Democratic party "is in default to the American people" and that labor and the people are being confidence. Asserting Congress was without a program, "except to exact necessary appropriations in ample time to engage in the national quadrennial political marathon," Lewis continued:

"I am one who believes President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for re-election. Conceding that the Democratic national convention could be coerced or dragged into renominating him, I am convinced that with the conditions now confronting the nation and the dissatisfactory action now permeating the minds of the people his candidacy would result in ignominious defeat."

(Editor's Note—Political observers were quick to interpret Lewis' remarks as the final break between the CIO and the national administration as now constituted. During the "little steel" strike a few years back, Lewis took his first crack at the President for the latter's "A plague o' both your houses" remark.

HUB HIT BY SNOW STORM

Augusta, Me., 13 above at Concord, N. H., and 11 above at Montpelier, Vt.

Still colder weather was predicted for tomorrow.

Weather conditions off Boston were so severe that three tugs which put out for Lynn and Salem were forced to turn back.

Lack of their services compelled the collier Isaac T. Mann to anchor off Salem, instead of entering the harbor as planned.

A Lynn barge, which was to have been towed out to sea, was obliged to remain tied up.

The collier Hartwellson, bound from Lynn to Norfolk, ran into heavy ice at the Buzzards Bay end of the Cape Cod canal and was forced against a buoy, damaging her propeller.

After temporary repairs made at anchor near Sandwich the vessel proceeded on her way.

Three motor tankers were forced to tie up at Sandwich due to the heavy weather.

The Coast Guard patrol boat Harriet Lane was breaking nine-inch ice at Lynn, the Coast Guard tug Haritan was keeping the fuel ship channel clear at Fore River and other Coast Guard ice-breakers were toiling hard off Maine and Rhode Island shores.

9.5 Inches of Snow

Snarls Nation's Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Nearly everybody in the capital was late to work today, struggling through snow 9.5 inches deep on the level and far deeper in curb-stone drifts.

Pupils who did not show up for school were excused and all school buildings were ordered closed at noon.

More than 2000 men were put to work cleaning streets. It was the deepest snow since 1936. The most severe storm in years swirled over lower Delaware, piling up drifts as deep as eight feet, closing highways and schools and virtually isolating some towns. Business was suspended in Milford, Georgetown and Sanford. Streets were almost impassable.

Atlantic City, N. J., reported a seven-inch snowfall that paralyzed traffic.

Snow blanketed Virginia with a covering from 3 to 21.7 inches in depth, virtually paralyzing transportation facilities in the central and southern sections of the state.

Danville reported 21.7 inches, the heaviest in 40 years, while the 16 inches at Richmond, the result of a 24-hour fall, was the deepest since 1908.

Business Outlook
Defies Gossip

Financial Editor

While gossips prattle of what is going to happen to business activity in the weeks ahead actual returns show a robustness hardly in harmony with the views they effortlessly siphon from pessimistic forecasters . . .

SECOND HAND . . . Stories, as most are, of the coming relapse in production loss what little weight they might carry when confronted with charts like the one shown to-day . . . If business was going to undergo a severe shaking an approximate 7 1/2 point spurt such as that in the second week of 1930 would be out of the question . . . Automobile makers, for instance, are too wise to hike output upward some 111,330 units unless their products have somewhere to go besides the storage warehouse . . . And that was a principal factor in the index jump . . . Nor do electric power companies increase their output of kilowatt hours to another new all-time peak unless consumptive requirements demand they do so.

WEEKLY INDEX OF BUSINESS TREND
MEASURED BY ADMINISTRATIVE AND RESEARCH CORPORATION (BASE 1926 = 100)

EXPERIENCE . . . Shows that in the early months of the year there is some let-down in trade activity . . . And it is our intention to emphasize this normal trait rather than the "imagined terror" of gossip because this year will not prove an exception . . . If there is a possibility 1940 will not follow the pattern of its two immediate predecessors it lies in spring recovery potentials . . . March, April gains were a habit in many past upward spirals . . . And granted a dip comparable to those of 1938 and 1939 sentiment should be as strongly bulwarked by the much higher average rate of activity that it will promote something more than a rippling recovery . . .

SHARP CRITICS . . . Of construction trends can find little wrong with metropolitan Boston's 1939 figures . . . Smart critics are carefully scrutinized nowadays in order to ascertain the role played by publicly financed projects . . . If it is important the gains lose caste with evidences of recovery trends . . . Such a criticism can not be made of the report submitted by James A. Harding, Jr., Boston manager of Dodge Reports . . . For while construction undertaken by Federal, State and local governments was large and showed an increase it accounted for less than a third of the total . . . And residential building showed the most impressive gain . . . Up some 67 per cent over 1938 totals . . . And well above the one-third of the total mark . . .

STOCK PRICES . . . Are getting a thorough test . . . So far this week special price weakness has been complemented by selling induced for sympathetic reasons . . . As commodity topped bearish forces had an unexcelled opportunity to crash the list into new ground . . . They failed . . . In fact selling attempts were followed by recoveries the moment pressure lifted . . . And most observers agree that when it requires constant pressure, by those bearishly inclined, to put prices down the market is on a firm footing . . . For real price weakness may be started by professional sellers but it's public liquidation that keeps declines running from session to session . . .

BOSTON CHAPTER . . . Of the National Association of Cost Accountants will hear guest speakers discuss "The Control of Maintenance" at their regular monthly meeting Thursday evening . . . The Chapter is also celebrating its 20th anniversary . . . And in addition to Arthur C. Chubbuck and Thomas A. Dunbar, the guest speakers, both of whom are former Chapter presidents, will also entertain C. Howard Knapp, national president from Cincinnati, and Dr. Stuart C. McLeod, national secretary from New York . . . Chairman and discussion leader of the evening will be Stanley G. H. Pich, Boston Chapter president in 1928-29, who was recently appointed to the Board of Registration of Certified Public Accountants by Governor Saltonstall.

NOTEBOOK . . . An interesting study of Western Auto Supply Co. has been prepared by Schirmer, Atherton & Co., members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchange . . . Recent growth and earnings trends are set forth in the study together with the current outlook . . . And the last, we think, is far more attractive than that of most retail units because of the geometric growth qualities inherent in the company . . . The Boston & Maine bond exchange plan is meeting with steady approval . . . As the announcement that holders of $30,000,000 of old bonds have assented to the plan clearly shows.

Aviations Up With Steels in Quiet Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (AP)—Steel and aircraft shares put on a mild rallying show in the stock market today.

Many issues were slow to follow the leadership and as a result prices were uneven. Dealings remained too small to make much change in prices. Gains in a few shares ran to a point or more.

las Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Airlines, du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Colgate Palmolive, Santa Fe and Loew.

General Motors was hesitant. While news in general failed to make much impression on the slow trading there was feeling of anxiety in Wall Street over the possibility of increased taxation for business, coming on top of Sec. Morganthau's statement advocating federal economy and more taxes as a means of balancing the budget.

Foreign security markets were higher. Bonds were firm. Commodity prices tended higher. Students of the oils were disappointed by the report that gasoline stocks last week, despite a cut in production, rose about 1,500,000 barrels to a potential surplus for this time of year of about 10,000,000 barrels. Absence of foreign demand and lack of shipping to handle what orders there were, were given as causes for the increase.

Production of crude oil was lifted an average of 45,000 barrels daily, indicating the building up of a surplus.

Economic Commentator

With problems intensified by a war torn world, American businessmen and politicians ought to bury the hatchet, and seek to achieve genuine cooperation.

In his recent memorandum to the temporary national economic committee, R. C. Leffingwell, financier and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, well said:

"We should have cooperation between business and government. And I mean cooperation, not division by government, nor vituperation by business. No economy can work well when business and government are at loggerheads."

This column has frequently criticized smoldering business baying by politicians. It is equally opposed to "vituperation by business" of public officials.

Business men should recognize that politicians are middlemen, or jobbers, in ideas and policies. Under the representative form of government, which we cherish, politicians seek to retain their scepter of power by pleasing their constituents.

Accordingly, business men should co-operate by talking directly to the bosses of the politicians, namely the voters, through honest, streamlined and simplified factual material relating to the national economy and the part individual enterprises play in making it work.

Business men should not berate public opinion, and should actively go out and seek honest and openly to contribute to the building up of an informed opinion.

Politicians at Washington this year seem especially sympathetic to the business need for restraining governmental expenditures. President Roosevelt, in his budget speech, which provided for another deficit nevertheless asked for curtailment in numerous directions of ordinary non-preparedness expenditures. In Congress, economy sentiment is growing. Taking cognizance of this, Mark Sullivan recently observed:

Business-Politics Peace Pact Urged

"In the House, as far, the economists are in the saddle and seem secure there . . . The objective would be to cut expenditures to a degree that would avoid, first, any increase in taxation; second, an increase in the debt limit, now fixed at $15,000,000,000."

No organized group of business men has worked out a more satisfactory technique for friendly consultation with Congressmen and Senators than the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Inc. In referring to the obligation of business men to make representative government successful, E. Kent Hitchcock, president of the association, declared:

"Our Congressmen need your help, now, during the present session of Congress. Two Senators and four Representatives said so in no uncertain terms to some 40 industrialists, gathered at the dinner held by the association. They listened respectfully to the views of some 14 manufacturers, a banker, an insurance executive and a tax counsel on present and pending legislation."

"They were both enlightened and astounded at some of the complications and injustices wrought when they were told how certain control legislation by theorists gets in the way of every-day practical business."

AUTO MANUFACTURERS ARE HIGHLY OPTIMISTIC

DETROIT, Jan. 24 (AP)—The war in Europe has stopped all the motor industry's shipments across the Atlantic; a presidential campaign and an election lie ahead; assembly plant activity has reached a pace so fast that a contraction of output is indicated, but—

The men who make motor cars are more frankly optimistic right now than they have been at any time in many years. They don't cross their fingers when they tell you their business is headed for further improvement and that there will be buyers for all of the 4,000,000 cars and trucks the assembly plants will roll out during the calendar year.

At about the beginning of 1932, car manufacturing stopped trying to "pump up" business with optimistic statements and began making qualified predictions. Virtually the only qualification attached to current optimistic forecasts concerns the hope that labor troubles are definitely in the background.

Assemblies for the current month will approximate 470,000 units, a sizeable start toward the year's expected total, but at the same time a level of production regarded as "abnormal" in most trade circles. The highest previous January output in the industry's history was in 1929 when the assembly plants turned out 423,038 cars and trucks. For the like month a year ago the total was 354,950.

'Two for the Show' Opens Here, And It's a Stage 'Must'

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Two for the Show" is not only the title of the smart new musical revue Boston saw for the first time last night and Broadway doubtless will see for months and months to come.

It should definitely be your order to the Shubert Theatre man before the curtain rises upon

Saturday night's final performance of the Nancy Hamilton Morgan Lewis sequel to last season's Broadway production, "One For the Money."

It is well worth your attention and money. Miss Hamilton has contributed a most devastating sketches and not a few catchy lyrics. The Morgan music, especially in the instances of "How High the Moon," "A House With a Little Red Barn," "Fool for Luck" and "Calypso Joe," is remarkable. The scenery and costumes designed by Raoul Fene Du Bois are soothing when they are not exciting, which is as it should be.

Annotating this handsome production are as vibrant and versatile a group of young performers as ever dressed a stage.

Notably there are Richard Hayden, Eve Arden, Brenda Forbes, Koonin Wynn, Tony Womack, William Archbold, Kathlyn Krimmer, Betty Hutton, Richard Smart and Nadine Gray.

Mr. Hayden, whom you'll recall as the prince fish in favor of Noel Coward's "Set to Music," gives a lovely lesson in "Two for the Show" that should put to shame a little culinary experts of the airwaves and the kitchen ranges for all time.

His "recept" calls for "your weight in eggs, to which add a whole ox," etc., something that might have irritated late Joan Kelly of "Itchy Vixen."

Eve Arden is one of the show's lightest spots, as she does Dietrich to the teeth in the "Destiny Has Hidden Away" sketch.

Another laugh-act is the second act's "Pampering Distraction," in which she, settling herself into the dentist's chair, coyly admits she feels like a hummingbird.

She and Brenda Forbes do some athletic skydiving around a dear Noel's favorite comedienne and a clubwoman visitor, respectively. The one Miss Arden portraying a lady in search of her fiancée's suspected alter ego and Miss Forbes impersonating an abashed-minded southern belle requiring the constant reminders of a young East Indian offer another excellent excuse for laughter.

Joan Bennett, Menjou Star In New Loew's State Film

With the departure Friday night of "Gone With the Wind," Hal Roach's screen comedy-romance, "The Housekeeper's Daughter," will take up lodgings at Loew's State Theatre.

The scandalizing title role is portrayed by Joan Bennett, who has exchanged her blonde for a brunette personality and hair-do. The new Mrs. Walter Wanger has for her co-star, Adolphe Menjou, appearing as a screw newspaperman.

The story concerns the mad antics of a group of amateur and professional sleuths who try to solve the mysterious murder of Gladys Fontaine, Broadway play-girl, in the swank town-house of the socially prominent Randall family. Involved are the housekeeper's dizzy but adorable daughter, the Randall son, two newspapermen, a Hollywood mob of gangsters and a psychopathic homicide.

THE RECENT DEATH of a Naval aviator when his plane collided with another during formation flying practice above Boreas Valley near San Diego, Cal., was the TWELFTH fatality in similar exercises within a year.

That five other flyers escaped miraculously by parachuting to safety, can be regarded only a great good fortune. According to the usual odds in such midair collisions, they too stood to die.

Considered as a loss of material and the investment in trained personnel, such accidents are costly indeed. Considered otherwise, the loss of this young life, and the eleven that preceded him last year, constitutes a tragic and STUPID waste of things that are precious and irreplaceable.

Is it not possible that the Naval higher command insists on unnecessary risks during routine training flights?

The two ships and eleven men lost last year were flying 70 miles out at sea in a storm. The two ships and one man lost last week were flying overland in a country full of dangerous air currents.

Where is the military advantage, anyway, of two ships being so close together?

To present a better target to ground guns, to give capricious winds the best chance of blowing them against each other?

The Navy has made many splendid flights in formation. But these were made after long preparation, precise arrangements and foresighted direction. The two accidents of the past year obviously were not thus carefully guarded against.

It is long past high time that the Naval air command should give close attention to this deplorable matter. Neither the Navy nor the country can afford to lose more lives needlessly.

The Navy specially, cannot afford to provoke the question that training methods and orders result too often in the squandering of material that is costly to replace, and of brave men who can never be replaced.

FORMATION FLYING
Why Invite Accidents?
in the squandering of material that is costly to replace, and of brave men who can never be replaced.

HOLLYWOOD KISSES are going to be at least six feet of film shorter in the future.

The reason, says Director Mervyn Leroy, is that "red-headed actresses like Vivien Leigh get more emotion into a ten-foot scene than most blondes or brunettes can in twenty."

This would have pleased Queen Elizabeth of England, history's outstanding redhead, who surrounded herself with the handsomest men of the kingdom until she was some seventy-odd years of age, and then carried on with artificial tresses.

It would also have pleased Elizabeth's lighter-complexioned cousin, Mary, Queen of Scots, who lost her head on the block, but not before she had experienced joy and sorrow in four romances.

Further proof that possession of red hair often means fame and fortune is contained in any book that mentions such women as Cleopatra, Nero's wife Popaea, Madame de Maintenon, Ninon de L'Enclos, Sarah Bernhardt and Mrs. Leslie Carter. All were fiery brick-tops.

Perhaps, at this late date, Hollywood is discovering something that the rest of the world has suspected for centuries.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES show little reduction in Massachusetts. Total deaths last year to date were thirty-one. This year the number is thirty.

In spite of the fact that 119 licenses were taken away for driving after drinking and 395 were suspended for improper operation, automobiles killed eighteen persons last week, seven more than were recorded in the corresponding week in 1939.

Though many questions are asked by the thousands who deplore this needless loss of life, one stands out above all others.

When is Massachusetts really going to achieve highway safety? That is the all-important question.

It is both irksome and disillusioning to read week after week that automobiles have killed one fewer or two more persons than during a like period in a previous season or year.

What everyone wants to see is a report that says, "NO DEATHS!"

THE REPUBLICAN CLUB of the Fifteenth Assembly District in New York will give a ball at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on the fifth of February, and the most imposing guest will be an elephant named Minnie.

The ladies of this Silk Stocking district have selected Minnie as the glamour girl of 1940, and why not? Elephants are fascinating playmates.

I once knew a lady elephant of excellent disposition and, so far as I know, impeccable morals.

Her name was Alice and she worked in the Hippodrome for her board and keep along with a clown named Marceline, and a dark-eyed soprano named Rose La Harte.

THE main job of the press agent of the big showhouse was to get the dark-eyed lady into the newspapers. So he telephoned me down at my newspaper one winter's day much like this:

"Sir," said he, "if you will trouble to gaze from a window of your family newspaper and printing house, you will observe that Nature, always wonderful, has just laid down a nice soft carpet of six inches of snow. I have arranged for you to go sleigh riding with Miss La Harte in a sleigh drawn by our celebrated lady elephant, Alice."

With two-ton Alice, ten feet tall, harnessed to the sleigh. And

"GLAMOUR GIRL"

At Republican Club Ball

away we went, bells jingling.

"Where," I asked, "shall we drive?"

"To Tiffany's," said the dark-eyed lady.

As our snow-chariot, tranquilly drawn by the huge beast, turned from Sixth into Fifth avenue, horses reached for the sky with their forelegs.

Traffic went into inextricable tangles. Red-faced policemen shrilled their whistles and phoned for the reserves.

Mr. Tiffany's clerks, gazing pop-eyed through the plate-glass windows upon the spectacle turned quite pale.

Mr. Tiffany himself emerged from his private sanctum, carrying as I recall a diamond tiara in one hand and a six-shooter in the other.

SPEAKING of glamour girls, as they call them nowadays, archaeologists in the Eternal City have uncovered the Roman home of one of the great glamour girls of all times. Workmen grading the banks of the Tiber River uncovered elaborate frescoes and mosaics, marble fragments and whole rooms which must have been most magnificent.

The frescoes revealed that the palace of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, was situated in the gardens of Caius Julius Caesar, about a mile outside the walls of ancient Rome.

Continually this red-haired, blue-eyed, milk-skinned siren appears and reappears in the news of the day more than ten thousand years after she quit the world.

Not very long ago the historian Carcopino asserted that Caesar never was bewitched by the Lady of the Nile and that their association was actually platonic and political.

The discovery of her Roman palace in the gardens of Caesar's country place would hardly support Signor Carcopino's contention, one would think.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—We attended Senator Borah's funeral. Any funeral in the Capitol is dignified and impressive and, in addition, the flowers today were very beautiful. The services were simple, the words comforting. Finally, one of the chaplains recited Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." One line in particular I always like, it is: "May there be no sadness or farewell when I embark."

There should be no sadness in this case, except for those who loved him and are left behind. Mr. Borah's long life has been a useful one in public service, and while those who love him cannot fail to be lonely, they are spared the one thing which I think brings bitter sorrow—the feeling that a life has passed without opportunity for fulfillment, or that the opportunity has not been used to the full.

SUNDAY, quite a number of us attended the service at St. Thomas Church. I liked the thought expressed in the sermon which brought out that there are many kinds of poverty which are not of the purely material variety. It is hard to rise above starvation, in fact it is impossible, but one may have much of the world's goods and still be poor indeed in spirit.

EN ROUTE TO DINNER AT WHITE HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Massey with Airline Hostess

In the afternoon, Mr. Julian Bryan showed us his movies taken in Warsaw, Poland, last September. First he shows Poland as he knew it during peace time, so the contrast makes a deep impression on his audience. I do not think anyone can see these pictures and fail to be impressed with what happens to any individual when we indulge in this madness called war.

Following this, Mr. Donald Slesinger and Miss Alice Kelleher of the American Film Center, brought three films. One done by the University of Minnesota students, states some of the youth problems of the day and is done as effectively as any professional film.

The second is a Canadian film which tells the story of one boy and thus the story of the effort which Canada is making to help its unemployed youth.

The third is a British film on nutrition. This is an educational film shown in order to educate the nation to food values and better spending. I doubt if it would be a successful film in this country, but something similar should be done.

Broadway Medley JOLSON SHOW SIGNS MARTHA RAYE? By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—"The command performance of 'Life With Father' hasn't been cleared yet," a producer reports at Sardi's. "The Theater Authority insists upon the usual percentage for benefit shows, even though it's a command performance. The President said he's for it" . . . at Broadway and Forty-ninth, the electric lights are darkened to signify the demise of "Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolics"—the former Paradise Restaurant, which was the oldest major club on Broadway . . . "William Saroyan wrote two letters last week to George Jean Nathan," an agent relates at the Beachcombers. "The first was 1800 words long, the second 2000 words. Each was signed: 'Yours, in haste.'"

"WHEN JACK DEMPSEY was in London last," a waiter announces at Dempsey's, "Gilbert Miller brought him to the Duke of York, now the King of England. The Duke sat at a corner table, and when they were introduced, Jack said: 'That's all right, sit down. Don't get up for me' . . . "There'll be a big fight at the Equity meeting," an actor assures at the Versailles. "Because some Equity members object to playing benefit shows for Finland—and Bert Lytell, acting head of Equity, is on Hoover's Board for Finnish Relief" . . . "Richard Horowitz, who has a musical scholarship with Saul Goodman of the Philharmonic, applied to the National Youth Administration for a job with Stokowski's Youth Orchestra," an N. Y. A. executive states at Tony's. "The 16-year-old youngster said that his real ambition was to become a newspaper man, and added: 'I've got swell experience, too. I've been thrown out of Toscanini's dressing room three times.'"

"JERSEY NEIGHBORS are getting up a petition for Joe Burke, the world's sculling champ, who just won the Sullivan Memorial Trophy," a petitioner announces at the Hollywood. "We want him to run for office, and there are over 1500 names on the petition" . . . "Arthur Shields, of the Abbey Theater, who played in 'Kindred,' has had to undergo hospital treatment," one of the cast reports at Leon & Eddie. "Haila Stoddard beat his chest so hard, during one of the scenes, that she broke his rib. Haila's husband, Jack Kirkland, is the one who tried to break the rib of Dick Winters, the drama critic" . . . Fritz Mandl, Hedy Lamarr's former husband, had a dinner party and just missed seeing Hedy," the doorman informs at the Stork Club. "He hasn't seen her since that movie, 'Ecstasy.'" for a job with Stokowski's Youth Orchestra," an N. Y. A. executive states at Tony's. "The 16-year-old youngster said that his real ambition was to become a newspaper man, and added: 'I've got swell experience, too. I've been thrown out of Toscanini's dressing room three times.'"

G-MAN LAMBERT of the original Boston crime-busting firm of Irey and Lambert is the big gun of the New Orleans siege (by the United States) of the Huey Long empire . . . Partner Irey (Hugh) remains in Boston until a few items of income tax business are cleaned up . . . The daily doubles pay-off at New Orleans yesterday, by the way, gave the bookies and race-bettors a huge laugh . . . The winning horses of the daily double races paid $22.60 and $132.80 respectively . . . A parlay of the two horses would have paid $1514.32 . . . The daily double pay-off, however, was only $237.

THE BOOKIES WERE in need of a bit of laughter, though, after the result of the first race at that famous track was posted . . . "King Cotton" was the winner, and the country's most prominent "scratch sheet" installed the nag a 2 to 5 favorite . . . Those odds would have meant a return of $2.80 for the customary $2 wager . . . Instead, the horse paid $12.40 . . . Horse-players deduced that the well-known dodge known to the fans as "the build-up" or the "upflash" had been worked . . . The books were convinced of it.

THE "UPFLASH" is the trick of making a solid favorite a longshot in the odds by betting on other horses in the race . . . Meantime, the bookmakers of the country are sprayed with wagers on the "elected" horse . . . Believing they are backing a short-priced favorite, the bookies generally hold the bets . . . In the final few minutes of betting, the odds are manipulated, and when the "closing line" comes over the wires, it is too late for the bookmakers to "lay off" the bets they are holding . . . The device can be worked inexpensively only when a small amount of money is wagered on the race . . . New Orleans has been the scene of several cleanups through "the upflash" this winter.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: With America's First Actress in town—at the Colonial . . . from her husband, Charles MacArthur (who covered Nantasket for this newspaper in 1922) comes regards to several of his former running mates . . . She is, of course, Miss Helen Hayes . . . Her play, "Ladies and Gentlemen," by the way, is a story by her husband and Ben Hecht about the strange manner in which a certain jury arrived at a verdict . . . (A similar story may some time be told in play form of the thought processes which get a judge to the dramatic point where he makes a decision. Frequently, these decisions have a background which has nothing to do with the case, we are sorry to say).

JIMMY McHUGH, Boston's generous gift to Tin Pan Alley, and the composer of "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" (a pop classic), and the recent "South American Way," caught an act of Miss Hayes' premiere (he had seen the show twice in New York), and was present at "Two for the Show," last night . . . His lyric-tinker, Al Dubin, was also in town for the premiere, and so was Harry Kaufman . . . Mr. Kaufman will be co-producer of the Dublin-McHugh musical starring Jimmy Durante, Ray Bolger (also of Boston) and Patsy Kelly (not yet signed—but about to be).

Hollywood Today EDW. G. ROBINSON RANKS WITH BEST By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—When "Magic Bullet" is released—and I hope Warner, change the title back to "The Story of Doctor Ehrlich" Edward G. Robinson will rank with Paul Muni and Spencer Tracy as one of the finest character actors of the screen. I was on the set, and didn't even know him, so wonderful is the makeup Perc Westmore furnished him. His performance will have the critics raving from coast to coast. The story is hard, but handled so delicately that it should have the support of the American Medical Association and all the doctors. After playing "Ehrlich" Eddie isn't going back to gangster parts. His next is "This Man Reuter," the story of the famous European news service founded by Reuter.

PHYLLIS BROOKS of the overflow of lipstick; the first I ever saw was used by Ann Masters of the Chicago Herald-American. Fred Perry and Helen Vinson, once separated and married divorcing, are every day luncheon guests at the Idlewild. Jimmy Stewart flew to Kansas City today. Talk is that he went to bring back a new plane to himself. Jean Crawford convalescing after an attack of flu; Arthur Treacher growing a moustache on account of, he says, he wants to look like Rhett Butler.

MIKE LEVEE leaves Friday for New York to talk business to Paul Muni and Franchot Tone and to get in a few of the shows. Mackey Benney delighted the Victor Hugo guests by taking over the drum and playing with the orchestra the entire evening. Patric Knowles standing in the air had a very narrow escape from a crackup; Forrest Tucker, Helen Parrish's heart-throb, leaves for New York to make the acquaintance of his new twin nieces born to his sister. The pretty girl dining at Sardi's with Mark Gray is Jean O'Donnell, Vivien Leigh's stand-in.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

I BEGAN going with Leonard because I was in love with Max. Sounds like an odd, backward sort of thing to do, doesn't it? Especially when Leonard was a married man and Max wasn't. I was engaged to Max. Analyzing it now, I realize that I didn't respect or admire him, but there was something fascinating about him that I couldn't resist. And he used this emotion I felt for him to do the cruellest things. Instead of building me up with his love, he was doing the reverse. He had intervals of being kind and tender, and he swore he loved me; but most of the time it seemed to please him more to hurt me than to be good to me. THEN I met Leonard. He was married, but his work kept him separated from his family for months at a time. He was lonely, and I was desperately in need of someone to take my mind off Max. We began going with each other because it was expedient. But Leonard was always so sweet, so thoughtful, so considerate. In a few months we were in love with each other. I had gotten over my feeling for Max, yes; but at the price of loving a man who belonged legally to another woman. Day by day we became more necessary to each other. At last Leonard insisted he was going to ask his wife for a divorce. I asked him to wait a few days. Unknown to him, I went to his home town and called on his wife, giving the excuse that I wanted her endorsement on a business venture I was thinking of organizing in her city. I found a sweet, vivacious little woman. Even I, who would have liked to find fault with her, could only love her. I NEVER saw Leonard again. I wrote him a note, telling him what I had done, saying I was going far away and that we were through. I came to Boston and am working here. Sometimes I get so lonesome for Leonard that I can scarcely endure it. If I could just hear his voice for a minute! If I could just have a note from him, to know he is well and thinks of me! But I resist the impulse to phone or write him. At last—but at what a price—I am learning the lesson of unselfishness and self-control. Can you write a short story? Send it to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Five dollars will be paid for week's best story.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

DON'T LET them tell you that time will cure the cruel ache of that loss . . . the racking nights . . . the huddled, hopeless dawns. IT WON'T. Don't let them kid you into thinking that some day you'll forget the sting of that shame . . . the scar of that double crossing. YOU CAN'T. Life isn't made that way. Love that's great enough to leave such a loss can't be healed by time. Pride that's sensitive enough to feel such a scar can't be forgotten. SO DON'T GO FOOLING YOURSELF THAT TIME WILL TURN AND MAKE YOU THE CAREFREE YOUNGSTER YOU WERE YESTERDAY. DON'T GO WAITING UNTIL YOUR HEART AND HEAD ARE HEALED AND HAPPY AND NEW. DON'T KEEP TELLING YOURSELF THAT YOU'LL TAKE A FRESH CHANCE—WHEN YOU'VE FORGOTTEN THE OLD BAD DEAL. YET, nevertheless, Life works! Goes on working, in spite of everything. In spite of pain . . . and hate and failure and shame . . . in spite of broken hearts and betrayal. IF YOU CAN'T FORGET, YOU CAN REMEMBER . . . AND PUT THAT MEMORY TO WORK . . . WHICH IS A MILLION TIMES BETTER THAN THE FANCIEST FORGETTING.

And if the scar won't heal, you can keep it from . . . for the understanding and the blessing of all other scars . . . which is so real and more than the most delectable balm. "I never knew how I could laugh till my heart broke," sang valiant Edna St. Vincent Millay. There's the crest of the great ones, the courageous ones, the triumphant ones. I'M THINKING of Lou Gehrig as I write this. Gallant, grinning Lou Gehrig who took his backward without flinching—and left America the braver for his spunk. "Do you know," he said? "He'd teach them to LIVE BY MINUTES. So Lou Gehrig, who could have gotten $100,000 a year, just for the use of his name, accepted Babe LuGuardia's offer to be New York City Parole Commissioner with $5000 a year, instead—TEACHING MEN TO LIVE! There was a man who turned his grave into a shrine! And you've only to walk a block, to meet them by the score. DON'T ASK THAT YOUR PAIN BE LESSENED! THANK GOD THAT YOU CAN FEEL IT . . . THANK GOD THAT YOU CAN USE IT . . . AND ASK THE HELP OF THOSE CRUCIFIED HANDS TO TURN YOUR GRAVE INTO A SHRINE!

THE RECENT DEATH of a Naval aviator when his plane collided with another during formation flying practice above Borega Valley near San Diego, Cal., was the TWELFTH fatality in similar exercises within a year.

That five other flyers escaped miraculously by parachuting to safety, can be regarded only a great good fortune. According to the usual odds in such midair collisions, they too stood to die.

Considered as a loss of material and the investment in trained personnel, such accidents are costly indeed. Considered otherwise, the loss of this young life, and the eleven that preceded him last year, constitutes a tragic and STUPID waste of things that are precious and irreplaceable.

Is it not possible that the Naval higher command insists on unnecessary risks during routine training flights?

The two ships and eleven men lost last year were flying 70 miles out at sea in a storm. The two ships and one man lost last week were flying overland in a country full of dangerous air currents.

Where is the military advantage, anyway, of two ships being so close together?

"King Cotton" was the winner, and the country's most prominent "scratch sheet" installed the nag a 2 to 5 favorite . . . Those odds would have meant a return of $2.80 for the customary $2 wager . . . Instead, the horse paid $12.40 . . . Horse-players deduced that the well-known dodge known to the fans as "the build-up" or "the upflash" had been worked . . . The bookies were convinced of it.

THE "UPFLASH" is the trick of making a solid favorite a longshot in the odds by betting on other horses in the race . . . Meantime, the bookmakers of the country are sprayed with wagers on the "elected" horse . . . Believing they are backing a short-priced favorite, the bookies generally hold the bets . . . In the final few minutes of betting, the odds are manipulated, and when the "closing line" comes over the wires, it is too late for the bookmakers to "lay off" the bets they are holding . . . The device can be worked inexpensively only when a small amount of money is wagered on the race . . . New Orleans has been the scene of several cleanups through "the upflash" this winter.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: With America's First Actress in town—at the Colonial . . . from her husband, Charles MacArthur (who covered Nantasket for this newspaper in 1922) comes regards to several of his former running mates . . . She is, of course, Miss Helen Hayes . . . Her play, "Ladies and Gentlemen," by the way, is a story (by her husband and Ben Hecht) about the strange manner in which a certain jury arrived at a verdict . . . (A similar story may some time be told in play form of the thought processes which get a judge to the dramatic point where he makes a decision. Frequently, these decisions have a background which has nothing to do with the case, we are sorry to say).

JIMMY McHUGH, Boston's generous gift to Tin Pan Alley, and the composer of "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" (a pop classic), and the recent "South American Way," caught an act of Miss Hayes' premiere (he had seen the show twice in New York), and was present at "Two for the Show," last night . . . His lyric-writer, Al Dubin, was also in town for the premiere, and so was Harry Kaufman . . . Mr. Kaufman will be co-producer of the Dublin-McHugh musical starring Jimmy Durante, Ray Bolger (also of Boston) and Patsy Kelly (not yet signed—but about to be).

EDW. G. ROBINSON RANKS WITH BEST
By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21—When "Magic Bullet" is released—and I hope Warners change the title back to "The Story of Doctor Ehrlich," Edward G. Robinson will rank with Paul Muni and Spencer Tracy as one of the finest character actors on the screen. I was on the set, and didn't even know him, so wonderful is the makeup. Purely by the way, his performance will have the effect of making front coasters a habit.

The story is daring, but handled so delicately that it should have the support of the American Medical Association and all the doctors. After playing "Ehrlich" Eddie isn't going back to gangster parts. His next is "This Man Butler," the story of the first European news service founded by Reuter.

PHYLLIS BROOKS

SNAPS SHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Loretta, Stan Laurel's costar in "The Law," with Lew Brice at Max's, a very new combination. Paylin, Brooks and Freddie Brown in a Victor Hugo two-act; and Ann Morrison dining with Eddie Marin at the Troc; Phyllis Brooks, still sick with the flu. Edw. G. Robinson returned from New York on Sunday and gave the studio executives a shock when he asked for the "Sea Hawk" script the moment he stepped off the plane—without being asked to read it either; one knew, however, from examining tipped cigarettes, and a very good idea, to take care of the overflow of lipstick; the first I ever saw were used by Ann Masters of the Chicago Herald-American; Fred Perry and Helen Vinson, once separated and rumored divorcing, are every day luncheon guests at the Delhaven; Jimmy Stewart flew to Kansas City today. Talk is that he went to bring back a new plane for himself; Joan Crawford convalescing after an attack of flu, Arthur Treacher proving a moustache on account of, he says, he wants to look like Rhett Butler.

MIKE LEEVEE leaves Friday for New York to talk business to Paul Muni and Frankfort Tene and to get in a few of the shows. Mickey Rooney delighted the Victor Hugo guests by taking over the drum and playing with the orchestra the entire evening; Patric Knowles stunting in the air had a very narrow escape from a crackup; Forrest Tucker, Helen Parrish's heart-throb, leaves for New York to make the acquaintance of his new twin niece born to his sister. The pretty girl dining at Sardi's with Mack Gray is Jean O'Donnell, Vivien Leigh's stand-in.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

I BEGAN going with Leonard because I was in love with Max. Sounds like an odd, backward sort of thing to do, doesn't it? Especially when Leonard was a married man and Max wasn't.

I was engaged to Max. Analyzing it now, I realize that I didn't respect or admire him, but there was something fascinating about him that I couldn't resist. And he used this emotion I felt for him to do the cruelest things.

Instead of building me up with his love, he was doing the reverse. He had intervals of being kind and tender, and he swore he loved me; but most of the time it seemed to please him more to hurt me than to be good to me.

THEN I met Leonard. He was married, but his work kept him separated from his family for months at a time. He was lonely, and I was desperately in need of someone to take my mind off Max.

We began going with each other because it was expedient. But Leonard was always so sweet, so thoughtful, so considerate. In a few months we were in love with each other. I had gotten over my feeling for Max, yes; but at the price of loving a man who belonged legally to another woman.

Day by day we became more necessary to each other. At last Leonard insisted he was going to ask his wife for a divorce.

I asked him to wait a few days. Un-known to him, I went to his home town and called on his wife, giving the excuse that I wanted her endorsement on a business venture I was thinking of organizing in her city. I found a sweet, vivacious little woman. Even I, who would have liked to find fault with her, could only love her.

I NEVER saw Leonard again. I wrote him a note, telling him what I had done, saying I was going far away and that we were through. I came to Boston and am working here.

Sometimes I get so lonesome for Leonard that I can scarcely endure it. If I could just hear his voice for a minute! If I could just have a note from him, to know he is well and thinks of me! But I resist the impulse to phone or write him. At last—but at what a price—I am learning the lesson of unselfishness and self-control.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DON'T let them tell you that time will cure the cruel ache of that loss . . . the racking nights . . . the huddled, hopeless dawns. IT WON'T.

Don't let them kid you into thinking that some day you'll forget the sting of that shame . . . the scar of that double crossing. YOU CAN'T.

Life isn't made that way. Love that's great enough to leave such a loss can't be healed by time. Pride that's sensitive enough to feel such a scar can't be forgotten.

SO DON'T GO FOOLING YOURSELF THAT TIME WILL TURN AND MAKE YOU THE CAREFREE YOUNGSTER YOU WERE YESTERDAY. DON'T GO WAITING UNTIL YOUR HEART AND HEAD ARE HEALED AND HAPPY AND NEW. DON'T KEEP TELLING YOURSELF THAT YOU'LL TAKE A FRESH CHANCE—WHEN YOU'VE FORGOT THE OLD BAD DEAL.

YET, nevertheless, Life works! Goes on working, in spite of everything. In spite of pain . . . and hate and failure and shame . . . in spite of broken hearts and betrayal.

IF YOU CAN'T FORGET, YOU CAN REMEMBER . . . AND PUT THAT MEMORY TO WORK . . . WHICH IS A MILLION TIMES BETTER THAN THE FANCIEST FORGETTING.

And if the scar won't heal, you can keep it open . . . for the understanding and the blessing of all other scars . . . which is no end sadder than the most deliberate blindness. "I never knew how I could laugh till my heart broke!" sang Vincent Elmer St. Vincent Milloy.

There's the creed of the great ones, the courageous ones, the triumphant ones.

IM THINKING of Lou Gehrig as I write this. Gallant, grinning Lou Gehrig who took his blackout without flinching—and left America the braver for his spark.

"Die by inches?" Not he! He'd teach them to LIVE BY MINUTES. So Lou Gehrig, who could have gotten $200,000 a year, just for the use of his name, accepted Mayor LaGuardia's offer to be New York City Parole Commissioner with $6000 a year, instead—TEACHING MEN TO LIVE!

There was a man who turned his grave into a shrine! And you've only to walk a block, to meet them by the score.

DON'T ASK THAT YOUR PAIN BE LESSENED! THANK GOD THAT YOU CAN FEEL IT . . . THANK GOD THAT YOU CAN USE IT . . . AND ASK THE HELP OF THOSE CRUCIFIED HANDS TO TURN YOUR GRAVE INTO A SHRINE!

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN
FAVORITE radio programs, the latest novels, fireside chats and other diversions of a quiet evening at home were passed up last evening in favor of dancing at two big parties which claimed the attention of society . . . One was the first of a series of Waltz Evenings in the large ballroom of the Hotel Somerset, and the other was the annual Gardenia Ball given at the Copley Plaza for the benefit of the Charlotte Cushman Club . . .

As you might suspect, the waltzing party was attended by a host of devotees of three-quarter time who spent the evening gliding to their hearts' content to the lilting strains of Harry Marshard's special arrangements of Viennese waltzes . . .

Mr. and Mrs. E. Sohler Welch who are among Boston's most ardent waltz enthusiasts, were hosts at one of the many supper tables which lined the ballroom . . . and some of their guests were the friends who had enjoyed a private waltzing evening last week in the beautiful ballroom of the Welches' lovely Louisburg Square mansion . . . Mrs. Welch danced last evening in a full-skirted gown of pale gray tulle and lace . . .

JOAN CURTIS gets practice for a winter sports house party in the mountains by coasting on Milton estate of her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Estabrook.

Pre-Jitterbug

HOOP SKIRTS, long white kid gloves and other dainty feminine accessories of the pre-jitterbug days, were very much in evidence . . . Ellen Moseley made a lovely picture as she glided in a hoop skirted taffeta of cornflower blue with pink roses at the waist and a strapless bodice . . . Rosamond Higgins, so tiny that her partner swept her off her feet as they whirled about, wore crimson taffeta with hoop skirt and deep border of embroidered organdie around the bodice . . .

Bella Grandin's dark hair was confined in a gold mesh snood which harmonized with her billowy gown of smoke gray tulle which had colored sequins on the bodice . . . and Mrs. Louis McClelland, who is always a colorful figure on the dance floor, wore an old fashioned flowered chalis gown with an off-the-shoulder neckline and an antique gold locket fastened around her neck with a black velvet ribbon . . .

Mrs. John Hallowell, another who deeply enjoys the lilting waltzes, looked very graceful as she was whirled around by her Milton neighbor, Joseph Leland . . . Her gown of black satin was enhanced by gardenias . . . Lalla Withington, Ernestine Hills in coral velvet, Mrs. B. Wendell Soule, Richard Nevins, the Roger Griswolds, Alida Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Procter, 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Guido Perera, Rachel Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lombard and Mrs. Sedgwick Marquand were among the many other enthusiastic waltzers . . .

Gardenias There, Everywhere

GARDENIAS BLOSSOMED on ladies' hair, wrists, slippers and shoulders, and even the men entered into the spirit of the party and wore them in their lapels, at the Gardenia Ball which must have reaped a handsome sum for the coffers of the Cushman Club . . . Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, chairman of the ball, is leaving for Florida next week so the many guests at her table proposed a toast to the success of her winter holiday . . .

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed.
You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful, for real relief.
Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you'll never need anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable gualacel, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

You Can Be Beautiful

An Unusually Rich Hand Cream

By ARLINE GOULD

HAND-CONSCIOUS as this age seems to be... the creators of softening aids are quick to turn their best endeavors in this direction, and we very often come across a hand emollient that has distinctive virtues.

This is true in the case of excessively dry hands, which are not satisfied at all by the super-greasy lotions. Often they seem to have a temporary soothing effect, but not a lasting soothing one. For these extreme cases, we have found an unusually rich hand cream, which has lasting emollient properties.

It's an unusually good buy, too... a four ounce jar is only 45c... and the label is one which indicates it is the choice of a very fine, reliable shop.

When you use it, you'll notice instantly that it is extremely rich, so much so that it is frankly oily, with the same coddling consistency that makes lanolin the famous skin aid it is. Though you're aware of this oiliness at first, as you rub it on the hands, you'll find that it is instantly absorbed, and you needn't worry about greasy fingerprints.

Hands that chap so badly that they're apt to crack, and whose skin is apt to be ugly and painful in its scaliness, should have this kind of a "feeding" cream.

If you would like to learn all about this unusually rich hand cream, which is only 45c, for a 4 ounce jar, phone Arline Gould, LI-Berly 4000, week-days until five-thirty, or write inclosing a stamped self addressed envelope.

What Makes Good Pie?

By MARTHA LEE

A good pie always makes a hit in the family circle. In the making of a good pie, every housewife knows there are two goals to be aimed at:

- 1—A good pie crust
- 2—A good filling

We are presenting today our contribution to the easier making of better pies and tarts.

Did you ever stop to think of the countless fillings that may be right on your pantry shelf?

With these on hand, home cooks have the foundation of delicious economical pie fillings, and this is half the battle in pie-making. With this problem off their minds, anxious young matrons, eager to please their husbands, with an easy mind can turn their attention to the tasking of the pie crust, that important feature of pie like mother used to make.

CHOCOLATE COCONUT TARTS

- 1 recipe chocolate pudding
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cream whipped
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shredded coconut toasted
- 6 baked tart shells

Prepare chocolate pudding as directed on the package. Chill. Fold whipped cream and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup coconut into chilled chocolate mixture. Fill tart shells and sprinkle with remaining coconut. Serves 6.

CHOCOLATE PIE

- 1 recipe chocolate pudding
- $\frac{1}{2}$ baked pie shell

Prepare chocolate pudding as directed on the package. Pour pudding into $\frac{1}{2}$ baked pie shell. Chill. Decorate with chocolate shavings. Serves 6.

BANANA CREAM PIE

- 1 recipe vanilla pudding
- 2 bananas, sliced
- 1 baked pie shell

Prepare vanilla pudding as directed on the package. Pour pudding into $\frac{1}{2}$ baked pie shell. Cover with sliced bananas. Chill. Decorate with banana slices. Serves 6.

BUTTERSCOTCH PECAN PIE

- 1 recipe butterscotch pudding
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped pecan meats
- 1 baked pie shell

Prepare butterscotch pudding as directed on the package. Pour pudding into $\frac{1}{2}$ baked pie shell. Cover with chopped pecan meats. Chill. Decorate with pecan meats. Serves 6.

BAKING POWDER PIE CRUST

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cups sifted flour
- $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. baking powder
- $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 tsp. salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water

Mix flour, baking powder, and salt. Add water. Knead into a stiff dough. Roll out on a floured surface. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Use $\frac{1}{2}$ recipe for one pie shell only.

TART SHELLS

- Roll pastry $\frac{1}{8}$ inch thick. Cut with floured 4 or 5 inch round cutter. Roll out 12 circles. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Use $\frac{1}{2}$ recipe for one pie shell only.

PIE SHELL

- Use $\frac{1}{2}$ recipe baking powder pie crust. Line a 9 inch pie plate with pastry, rolled $\frac{1}{8}$ inch thick. Bake

Quick-Knit Cardigan

NOT ONLY are the thick, burly yarns extremely smart, but a great advantage to us is that they "knit up" in about half the time, or even a third, required to make a sweater with fine yarn.

This exceedingly jaunty cardigan... and wouldn't the girl who is getting together her spring riding outfit now, in anticipation of dry, sunny bridle paths, love it?... is done in a "knit one, purl one" routine, with heavy "kewltee" yarn and large needles.

Like regimental stripes are the decorations which simulate pockets, and the contrasting edge could be very bright and gay for a white or natural-tone sweater. Notice that while speed is an object, there is no sacrifice in style! The padded shoulders are an important feature. Good Food Resolutions

By MRS. BECKMAN

We housekeepers may buy foods of the very best quality, but if we don't pay attention to certain fundamental "musts" in the preparation and serving, the quality doesn't count for as much as it should.

Now is an excellent time for us to make these resolutions:

Resolved: I shall always heat the plates on which hot food is to be served.

Resolved: I shall never serve salads and aspics and chilled desserts on warm plates.

Resolved: I shall never serve lukewarm fruit juices.

Resolved: I shall always crisp the crackers that I serve with soup and salad, and so forth.

Resolved: I shall always thoroughly heat the rolls that I serve at any meal.

Resolved: I shall learn how to make an excellent French dressing.

IT WASN'T HIS FAULT

A Complete Short Story By McDONALD IRVIN

"I DIDN'T think it was my fault—so I left." Apparently assured that this would settle everything, Sandy Livingston waited respectfully for the next question.

Same old Sandy, slouching casually in expensive clothes, confident that looks, check, and an influential family would continue to cushion him against unwelcome realities.

No, two years hadn't changed him. I remembered Sandy at school, in hot water for most of five years, Sandy at Princeton, dodging creditors the morning after a fifty-dollar weekend, and this latest Sandy seemed not strange, but predestined. It wasn't that he was naturally vicious, or that he was naturally lazy or selfish. He just disdained actuality with a finesse that came of years of practice.

I saw it first at school, third form year, as five chastened kids quaked in the rector's black walnut and horsehair office. If we reflected at all on the reasonableness of the situation, we felt we were about to receive just punishment for a crime of thoughtlessness—rolling an eighty-pound wagon wheel down a steep hill near the school, had seemed exciting sport at the time, but the wheel, with a disarming obedience to natural law, failed to take a curve in the road, and crashed through the cold-frame of a neighboring farmer. It had been a foolish trick, and we were prepared to take the consequences.

A POPULAR BOY

That is, we all were, except Sandy. It didn't seem fair to him that he should be punished for something which the wheel, not he, had done, something which someone else had thought up. Politely but insistently—he was always polite, and very insistent—he explained his case to the rector, who remained completely unconvinced; all five of us, including Sandy, were stung twelve demerits and placed on bounds for two weeks. That we might be made fully aware of the gravity of the situation, the rector ordered that we should divide equally the twenty-seven dollars damages for the cold-frame, and pay it, at the rate of a dollar and a half a month, from our three-dollar allowances. This last came as a distinct shock, because, whereas we were hard-entitled to demerits, a fifty per cent cut in income was a serious matter. At least it was to everyone but Sandy. His family, completely disregarding school rules to the contrary, sent a monthly check that nullified any effect the rector's fine might have had.

The matter soon blew over, and Sandy achieved popularity by the wisest route known to the school—sport, athletic ability. Sixth form year, we felt more than honored when Sandy, famous as a right tackle, as center on the school hockey team, and as powerhouse of the first boat, asked a bunch

The Principal Character In "It Wasn't His Fault"

SANDY LIVINGSTON, pampered son of wealth, refused to be worried despite one scrape after another. But when his car struck a boy on a bicycle, well—of us down to his family's place on the eastern shore for the Christmas holidays.

We had a perfect setup for a swell time, a warm winter, good shooting, a private park for those who rode to hounds (I didn't), and a small army of kindly kind servants to help you eat, dress, and the house, I'm sure that farmer's only cause for regret was that the Livingston hounds hadn't a larger following. So far as I know, there the matter ended. Mrs. Livingston's only comment was, "I do so want you boys to have a good time."

For two merry weeks, every activity in that big house was shaped around our interests and activities, and we returned to school feeling pretty important and above such chubbish stuff as Latin and algebra and morning chapel.

Sandy entered Princeton with flying colors—which wasn't hard, when you consider that he was never a poor student, and Mrs. Livingston made things pretty fool-proof by hiring a couple of younger masters to coach him thoroughly for the month preceding the Boards.

Once at college, I saw very little of Sandy, mainly because I couldn't afford to run with his pack. From time to time, however, word of his activities covered most of the campus. Freshman year, for instance, there was the tale of Sandy and the clapper. It's an odd Princeton tradition that freshmen steal the clapper from the bell in Nassau Hall, so that the bell can't ring for Tall, dark and handsome gives a general picture, but there was a lot of humor, horse sense, and sweetness that the tale fails to mention. She was definitely not the sort of fluff that Sandy had always run around with. Sandy's attack, which consisted mainly of a barrage of theater tickets and orchids charged to his father, was hardly suave, but it seemed to be effective. About the time he was unable to see his way clear to anything but matrimony, his father got his mid-year report. A special tutor was hired to keep Sandy Sanfor in Princeton. The tutor knew his business and sized up the Lolly situation in a hurry. He gave Sandy a choice of Lolly or a diploma, and Sandy, who was appalled by the thought of matrimony, immediately took this as an excuse to ditch her. He soon got bored with studying and took up with a secretary in Princeton.

After that, we lost track of him, the only word of flunkouts when you're leading an active college life. Last June, after graduation, I became a correspondent for one of Manhattan's journals. One night last week I got a hurry call from my tipoff man at the county jail. I got there to find Sandy being arraigned. I telephoned a summary to the city desk, and they were crazy enough about it to offer five hundred words and a picture for page one.

HIS FAULT?

We got the story in the first edition and beat the town in announcing that Sandy, driving too fast to get to a dance at Southampton, had been unable to stop his convertible when an unlighted bicycle cut in from a driveway just ahead. I suppose that it was inevitable that he should act as he did; when he saw the pile of torn clothes and the brutally twisted wheel that had scarred his right fender, he turned his back on the whole mess, and stepped on the gas. After all, none of the blame was his, and he was already late for Peggy Mallory's party.

It wasn't his fault that he didn't get to Southampton. State police had blocked the road before he was out of the township. When I saw him, he was trying to light a cigarette, as he telephoned his father's secretary for bail and lawyers. At the hearing, he provided the night's lead for every story: "I didn't think it was my fault, so I left." I don't know whether the jury will see it his way, or not, but I'm inclined to rather with him.

I don't think it was his fault.

who made it obvious that she appreciated the Livingston fortune. Lolly wasn't the same for six months.

When he got around to friends, Sandy was about where we was at Midyears, except that he didn't have Lolly. When the marks went up, he had flunked two courses and done well only in one. He was not all right, and no one was really surprised, except maybe Mrs. Livingston. The only thing we couldn't understand was how he pulled a second group in politics. No one had noticed him staying it any more than anything else, and everything, considered, it did seem a little odd. The general accepted

HOCKEY WAR ON IF SHORE PLAYS TONIGHT

Ross, Int-Am Prexy Sharpen Swords

By AUSTEN LAKE

TROUBLE, TROUBLE, BOIL AND BUBBLE! There's blood in the moon! So here's a curious crisis in the hockey career of Mr. Eddie Shore, the Bruins' old hardware man, when his Springfield team, of which he has the awkward honor to be president, manager and player, plays in Pittsburgh tonight. Eddie, by order of his League president, MUST be in the lineup. But the Bruins, to whom he is still married as a kind of trouble shooter, say he MUSTN'T. Either way Eddie faces a painful spunk!

AUSTEN LAKE

It works this way! According to Springfield word today President Maurice Podoloff of the International League wired Shore that he is expected to play in Pitt, and at least once in every other League city. If he doesn't all home games which he has played or may play in Springfield are subject to protest. That sounds serious! But Uncle Art Ross of the Bruins says, "Ho-ho! not so fast. If Shore plays in Pitt tonight he will make his Bruins' contract null and void."

Why? "Our" his agreement does not permit him to play with other teams than the Bruins, "except by permission," said Uncle Art. "What if he does?" queried I. That half stumped Uncle Art for the nonce! He meditated with little corrugations on his brow. Then dawn broke! "We'll be forced to take a drastic step," said he.

Now a drastic step has an ominous ring. For there are only a few drastic steps that Uncle Art can take against Eddie. He can't send him back to his Alberta pig and cereal farm. And he can't levy a money plaster on him because he doesn't control any of Eddie's cash. So the D. S. can mean one of two things: He could (1) suspend Shore from further play in organized hockey and hope that President Podoloff would honor the decree, or (2) "waive" him to some rival National League unit like the Americans and let them wrestle with Edward's dual problem.

IT'S LIKE SOMETHING OUT OF A PSYCHOPATHIC ward. For Shore, with a personal investment in the Springfield property which runs close to $50,000 (real money!) finds himself squeezed between the upper and nether millstones. To play or not—that is a question!

President Podoloff seems to insist, "Play or else sit the rest of the season out! The Bruins say, "Play and take the consequences." Worry, worry, worry! And don't you think hockey stews up some qualms dishes.

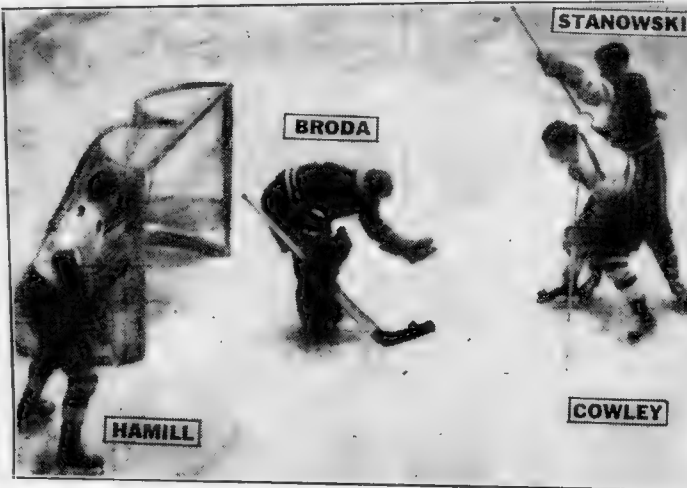

Ross has something on his side. He regards Shore as a valuable chattel! He says the old, but not antiquated, Mr. Muscles still has a hunk of hockey under his skin! He needs him as insurance against injury to his Bruin reserves! He states he will get in trouble with his own league if he lets so potent a box-office force trickle down the minor league drain. "It wouldn't be fair," he says.

"To whom?" asked I. "To the Bruins, the League and the Boston public," agree.

The whole imbroglio started last summer when Shore, against Ross's advice, bought the Springfield franchise with his surplus hockey earnings. He paid up $23,000 in back bills, pledged $15,000 more and another $10,000 for rink repairs. Then, after the deal was made, President Podoloff, who is something of an obdurate cuss too, wouldn't let him hold office till he got permission from the Bruins.

Art strummed his lower lip a while and finally drew up an agree-

"COME TO ME," chirps Turk Broda, Toronto goalie, as he gathers in a puck fired from the stick of Cowboy Bill Cowley. Red Hamill is in an ideal spot for a rebound but Broda is too smart, and holds the rubber until he can pass out safely. Wally Stanowski of the high stick hurried Cowley on the shot.

Krauts Again Poison to Leafs; Full House Sees Bruins Win, 4-1

By BILL GRIMES

In a typical old time Boston-Toronto battle, the Bruins took a 4 to 1 verdict from the Maple Leafs at the Boston Garden before one of the largest crowds of the season.

From the opening face off, the game was wild. It was exceptionally rough and it was very fortunate that some players weren't seriously injured for sticks were carried high, elbows were overworked and deliberate trips were very much in evidence.

As was the case on the Maple Leafs last appearance here, the Kraut line turned the trick. A month ago, Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt scored in overtime to beat Toronto 3 to 2. Last night, the Krauts scored for three of the four goals.

Little Bobby Bauer scored twice and between his tallies Art Jackson and Woody Dumart counted. Gus Marker tallied for the Leafs, tying up the game in the second period.

SCHMIDT LEADS DRILLON

During the middle stanza, Bob Davidson of the Leafs, while attempting to score on a close up shot, dove into the Boston cage and hit the back upright head on.

N. H. L. Standings

	W	L	T	Pts	For	Agst	Goals
Rangers	15	4	7	43	92	65	109
Boston	18	7	3	41	91	59	99
Toronto	16	11	4	36	85	66	96
Chicago	11	14	1	23	50	77	77
Detroit	8	16	4	20	47	73	73
Americans	9	21	7	19	60	84	84
Montreal	8	17	2	18	55	77	77
Boston 4, Toronto 1.
Rangers 5, Americans 3.

It was a terrific collision and Davidson received a five-inch laceration, which necessitated seven stitches to close. He returned to the game in the third period, wearing a helmet.

It was a real close game for two periods but the Bruins turned on the heat in the final period and scored three goals.

Milt Schmidt was tied fifth Gordie Drillon for top individual scoring honors going into the game. Drillon, who is still unfit for service, didn't play more than five minutes and failed to figure in the lone Toronto goal. But, "Schmidy" assisted on three of the four Boston tallies, and so he's three points up on the Maple Leaf right winger.

The Maple Leafs tore right after the Bruins at the first face-off, and began swarming into Boston territory. With the first minute of play, Mel Hill was butt ended back of his own cage and when he retaliated was sent off for two minutes.

While Hill was in the box, the Leafs put on the power but the Bruins' defense withstood every attack until Art Jackson broke out of the zone and set sail for the Toronto end of the ice. Art caught all of the Leafs up the ice but when he tried to shift to make his shot, fell and lost a fine opportunity.

The Krauts lived things up when they came on and it was very apparent that they were marked for considerable punishment. Gus Marker took off and dropped Woody Dumart and then Woody gave the Leafs wing a heck ho.

MARKER STEALS PUCK

During the eighth minute, Bill Cowley was sent off for charging Billy Taylor and again the Leafs carried the play to the Rossmen but to no avail.

At 9:40, there was a faceoff in the center zone almost in front of the Toronto bench. Milt Schmidt got the face and when the Toronto defense which was playing at the blue line charged in, he passed forward to Bobby Bauer, who gathered the puck and beat "Turk" Broda with a beautiful shot.

A Hollett-Hamill combination play came with a great save of scoring at the start of the second period, but three minutes later, Gus Marker stole the puck from Art Jackson right in front of the Boston net and tied the game with a lightning shot, which entered the cage before Frankie Brimsek could block.

There was no more scoring until the second minute of the final

Armstrong Favorite

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong puts his world welterweight championship on the line for the 15th time this evening in Madison Square Garden against the stiff-punching body attack of Pedro Montanez of Puerto Rico.

They tangle over the 15-round route and the way Gus Q. Fan and family have taken to the tea-party h's a Promoter Mike Jacobson beaming like a summer sun. "Uncle Mike" figured tonight that some 16,000 of the faithful would be on hand for the festivities contributing to a gross gate over the $50,000 mark.

The little buzzsaw who climbs into the ring about 10 p. m. (E.S.T.) this evening is a slower Armstrong than the rip-tearing Negro dynamite who skyrocketed out of the west a couple of years back to become the first fighter in ring history to hold three championships simultaneously. But he still sets a real hot pace and he is punching sharper and harder.

As a result, the odds-layers have made Henry the Hammer a 1 to 3 shot to wind up as "winnah and still champion."

Scout's Face Red As He Thinks Of Landis' Fine

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Clarence Rowland, Chicago Cubs scout, has a red face and the prospect of a thinner pocketbook. Rowland, you recall, brought a $1000 fine down on the Cubs by talking business with Benny McCoy and Roy Cullenbine before Commissioner K. M. Landis had cut them loose from Detroit.

No Rowland offered to pay the fine—and Owner Phil Wrigley accepted.

"Rowland has volunteered to pay the club's fine personally," explained Wrigley, "and I think it will do him good to pay at least part of it."

Just what part will be determined when Vice-President Charles "Boss" Weber returns from his vacation.

West Coast Experts Like Cantab Fighter

By JACK CONWAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 24—The battle for the heavy-weight title in the All-America finals in the Civic Auditorium here tomorrow night is expected to be a thriller.

It will bring together Teddy Wint of New York, standard bearer for the Eastern team; Napoleon Mitchell of Detroit, representative of the West and Alston Hooman of the Coast team.

All three heavyweights are colored and have shown first class fighting ability and boxing form in their local tournaments.

DETROIT ENTRY 6-3

Wint won the Eastern finals at the Boston Garden. He is better than the average run of amateur heavyweights.

Mitchell is six feet three inches tall, and scales around 220 pounds. He is a terrific puncher, but will find it difficult hitting the clever Wink if they meet.

Hooman has the backing of the Coast boxing fans who consider him the best amateur big fellow in the country.

BECKLES HOLD: ATTENTION

The New England boxers were to end their workouts today.

Following their arrival in San Francisco, members of the Eastern team worked out at the Olympic Club, the club where Jimmy Corbett and Jim Britt first learned boxing.

Charley Hunter of the club played host to the New England boxers. All of them engaged in fast workouts, and came through unmarked.

Al Priest looked impressive as he boxed with Paul Conley. Leonard and Daley also took part in brisk boxing drills. George Beckles has made a hit with San Francisco fight experts, who rate the Cambridge youngster as a fine ring prospect.

Basil Jones, New York flyweight, should be one of the hits of the show. White Cox, Eastern lightweight, should also show to advantage.

English Threatens To Dethrone Newton

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

That 13th annual Northeastern track meet at the Boston Garden, Saturday afternoon, promises to be a wide open affair and for that reason English high school's army must be conceded a chance of stealing the crown from defending champion Newton.

Rogers Peet

There is next to nothing to back the Blue and Blue so far as past performances go but you can depend on Coach Bill Ohrenberger's boys to cut a piece of the points cake.

LACKS COMPETITION

Coach Ohrenberger admits that his team is a huge question-mark and, handicapped because of the complete lack of competition, he doesn't know what to expect in this first major meet of the winter campaign.

"We've been practicing for six weeks now and have still to go into our first meet," says Ohrenberger.

"Our class meet was cancelled. Then snow postponed classes when we were due to run in the armory in a triangular meet. The lack of preliminaries may hurt our chances considerably."

"We've had time trials but we can't truly judge the boys on these tests. For example, in the 300-yard run, there are 12 corners on our track so that a boy that can turn these can turn in the best time."

Ohrenberger was depending mainly on big Burt Oranburg to jump English into a first place but the football player will go into the meet on an equally large question mark. Oranburg sprained the muscles in his hand so that his shot-putting, previously up to 50-feet, may suffer accordingly.

MOIR IN THOUSAND

Yesterday Oranburg worked out with the squad for the first time in more than a week.

Ralph Moir, in the 1000 and Peter Nearhos, in the 600, are untested quantities. Both have turned in fine times in their specialties but this will be the first major test for both boys.

Capt. Emil Shtogren, entered in both the dash and the 300, is a certainty to start in the longer distance event. Last year, he won his heat only to be shut out in the final. Shtogren is a fast starter and may still be used to support Joe Farina in the 50-yarder.

RHONE HURDLING THREAT

Warren Rhone, colored hurdler, may be the surprise of the Huskies affair. Ohrenberger has been greatly pleased with the timber topping turned in by this lad in the concrete hallway where, over 50 yards, he has turned in a time of 6.7.

There's no spring on this stone footing, the only straightaway available, and if Rhone wins the Huskies' 45-yard event, it will be no surprise to the Blue and Blue mentor.

If going into the relay races, English has a possibility of winning the meet. Ohrenberger will send his ace quartet of Bob Fisher, Moir, Nearhos and Shtogren to face Worcester, Commere and Lynn English. Otherwise, he'll save this group for the K. of C. clash against Latin school in the evening.

Pairings in the relays, announced today, pit Mechanic Arts and Newton; Lowell and Medford; Brockton, Everett and Lawrence; Worcester, North, Chelsea and Lynn Classical; Worcester Classical, New Bedford and Boston Latin; Rindge Tech, Somerville and Hyde Park; Arlington, Quincy and South Boston; B. C. High, Weymouth and Boston Trade; Winthrop, Brighton and Cambridge Latin; Watertown, Norwood and Roslindale; Jamaica Plain, Milton and Revere.

BOB IVY SUBS FOR BOLVIN

Bob "Poison" Ivy, the Hartford Hurricane, will clash with Dase Robertson, featherweight champion of the South from Birmingham, Alabama, in the 10-round feature of Top Sergeant Eddie Mack's Argonne A. A. boxing show tomorrow night at Mechanics Building.

It was announced by Mack that Larry Bolvin was forced out of the show when stricken with an attack of intestinal flu. R. I. boxing commission doctors refused to let Bolvin go through with his contract to fight Robertson after visiting him at his home and finding him very ill.

Ivy is a big favorite at Mechanics Building, where he drew with George Salamone and lost by a whisker to Sal Barolo.

Robertson wallpiped Dase Brown in an A. A. A. show and seems to be well matched with the Poison Kid.

Mack has rounded up a group of the finest amateur prospects in the vicinity to appear on a sparkling supporting card, with 40 rounds of boxing instead of the usual 35 listed.

Fights will be Al Rotunda vs. Eddie Burke, John Honig Eskew vs. Billy Gonsky and Billy Toddlione vs. Eddie O'Tash. Steve will be Jimmy Tanahan vs. Bill Lawrence, John Hayes vs. Al Sinabald and Lou Pico vs. Jack Dubois.

Toddlione and Campbell, the fighting men of the Met, will be making their professional debuts. Rotunda and Hayes are former amateur ring stars.

True to his word, Connie Smythe didn't accompany the Maple Leafs here for last night's game... He rode out of Toronto on the same train but changed at Albany and went directly to New York, where he sat in on the Ranger-Americans tilt.

Frank Selke was Smythe's pinch hitter and took the Leafs over to Gotham today... Capt. "Dit" Clapper will be out of the Bruin lineup for about ten days... He looks like a battle scarred war veteran... During the off season, "Doc" Romnes purchased a hotel at St. Croix, Wis. ... He quit hockey a week ago and is now devoting all of his time to the hotel business... Woody Dumart has a very deep cut on his foot but apparently the protection Trainer Win Green applied did his job, for the big left winger turned in another great game...

Milt Schmidt now tops the N. H. L. scorers with a total of 30 points... He has made 14 goals and received credit for 16 assists... Little Bobby Bauer, who, incidentally, was given a thorough going over by the Leafs, came up with two goals and an assist... Both of his goals were clean cut, so it looks like Bobby has recovered his eye... Gordie Drillon has a very sore looking foot... He was cut a few weeks ago on the top of his instep and the wound hasn't healed... Coach Dick Irvin isn't using Drillon to any great extent... Gordie appeared in the first period but didn't get on the ice again until last in the second stanza.

As usual, the Maple Leafs drew a capacity crowd and the game was a wild affair, featuring far too much high checking... In fact, it was very fortunate that the game didn't get away from Referee "Rabbit" McVeigh... Bill Stewart took a busman's holiday... The Maple Leafs miss Syl Apps... It doesn't look like the same club with Syl out of the lineup... Apps is seriously considering enlisting in the Canadian army... There were times last night when it looked from the press stand as though every player on the ice had two or three extra elbows... The Leafs seemed to be set upon slapping the Krauts by either fair or foul methods... But those three ment on last July 7 by which Shore would play any Bruins' home game after Dec. 15 at $200 per. He would get $300 for every Stanley Cup contest and a share in the play-off purse. But he was to be on "call" and as a consolation was to be a "free agent" on May 1, 1940—"free" that is except where bartering his services with any other major or minor league club than Springfield was concerned. He was to be free only in Springfield.

ROSS SIGNED AND EDDIE SQUIGGLED his signature too. Everything seemed honeydew! Eddie appeared in a few early Bruins games and devoted the rest of his time to his own business. But times were hard and the Springfield citizens, who are pretty cautious with a dollar, didn't come in large paydays. So Eddie began to think, "Gee, if only Art would let me play, I might draw some crowds." So he began to telephone, puerile, could he play.

Ross again said, "Sure! Go play, but only in your home games," thinking that would help Mr. Muscles to keep in condition for the Bruins. "Why not the out-of-town games, too?" I asked. "Simple," said Ross. "Shore was a contract member of the Bruins and according to section 38 of the National League code, our club has to present full strength, except sick and wounded, when away from home or else swallow a $1000 fine. I had our league waive that rule. So how could I let Eddie play the minor league circuit when he wasn't appearing on ours?"

So today Podoloff says MUST and Ross says MUSTNT and a lovely hockey spat looms unless one withdraws. It's a powder barrel and, with two such explosive types as Eddie and Art, a blowup may happen.

I question whether in any case Shore will ever appear on Boston ice again, though with Dit Clapper damaged and the team generally piddled, Ross would probably have called him to the colors this week. He may yet! Meanwhile Eddie, until he started conditioning himself for his own team, had been skating little and obviously intended to let his physical shape drift until recall was impractical.

So tonight's ill night and Pittsburgh is the focal spot. Something may snap—if only Uncle Arthur's patience and then there will be a horrendous fus.

THE ANGEL WRESTLES AT ARENA

"The Angel" makes his American wrestling debut tonight when he squares off against Luigi Baccalupi, huge Italian, in the main event at the Arena wrestling show.

Two hundred and fifty pounds of solid muscle, although he stands only five feet eight inches tall, "The Angel" is the most unusual looking athlete the world of sport has ever known.

His head is so huge that it's more than twice the size of any ordinary man's. His ears look like flapjacks and his nose seems to be the size of a half loaf of baloney. His hands are immense, the biggest wrestling hands ever known, and so big in fact that each of his fingers is about as big as a banana.

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

Ski Scribblings

BY "TAP" GOODENOUGH

ALL THE WAY FROM TEXAS TO SKI IN NEW HAMPSHIRE came five Southern lads, gentlemen of the old school! And these boys, new to snow, and the slippery slats, were doing "right well, sho' 'nuff!" in their initial outing. They soon had the "feel" of the strange sensation of schussing on winged boards, and took their spills as thrills with gay abandon and laughter.

Skating at Russell's slope in North Conway, N. H., Sunday last, to avoid the madding crowd on Cranmore Mountain, we chanced to hear the melody of the Southern accents emanating from the above group. So we boldly enquired from whence they came and learned 'twas from far-off Texas!

The boys flattered us to the extent of asking for a few instructions in the fundamentals of skiing, which we gladly gave them to the best of our ability. One chap, Harvey Weil from Corpus Christi, Texas, had so much natural rhythm that he learned to execute stem-schuss and snowplow turns in a couple of hours!

Harvey told us that he had done a lot of water skiing in his native state. He says this sport is very fast and thrilling, also a bit dangerous if one fails to fall correctly when thrown off balance. The skis used in such aqua-planing are very wide, and the skier holds on to a harness that comes from the tip of each ski...

We are sure that these fellows will soon be very able skiers, and their enthusiasm for the sport is contagious... The best of luck to each of these sportsmen!...

STUFF ABOUT SKIERS—Our week-end rendezvous was at the newly-renovated and inviting Cranmore Mountain Lodge in Keene, N. H. This abode for skiers has the true atmosphere, the walls being colorfully decorated with skiing posters from all over the world, and the food is excellent... DICK FLANDERS runs this lodge in gray style, as well as doing some skiing and expert ping-pong playing on the side...

Dick recently announced his engagement to "Babe" Ruth's daughter, Julia. She also skis, and they both love New Hampshire, the state where they met on a golf course... We were shown some fine color shots on the screen that Dick had taken in his travels throughout America and the Tropics...

Talking to TONI MATT Sunday morn before the start of the Giant Slalom on Cranmore, we found out that this downhill racing champ of the U. S. A. had injured his ankle two weeks ago. Despite this handicap, Matt made his practice run down the course in faster time than the winners!... Toni was born in Austria. He is now 20 years old and weighs 192 pounds, a handsome lad... He started to ski at the age of four, and was instructed at 14! He says he likes this country and our skiers... Toni is going to coach the Bowdoin ski team during the first week in February, along with his regular duties as instructor in the Eastern Slopes ski school... He will race soon...

Arnold Black, skiing photographer, artist, and pianist, took a skiing lesson from BENNO RYBIZKA on Saturday, and tells us that Benno is still the master of stem-schuss and stem christians!... He is strict, but thorough, and puts his pupils through their paces on all sorts of snow... Included in this class were some attractive "Debies" from New York...

Running things Sunday from the top of Cranmore was PHIL ROBERTSON, manager of the Skimo-

DEBORAH BANKHART Running Slalom Course

ERTSON, manager of the Skimo-

ble. Phil was kept very busy attending to various details of the Slalom Race, officiating, and checking on the numbers... The Jackson Ski Club sponsored an open race Sunday for men and women. It was called a "Gesch-mozel," all contestants starting at once!... This novel event was won by none other than MARY CONSTABLE, ski expert from Boston's Beacon Hill... Mary schussed the course in startling style, and was very thrilled over winning a nicely engraved shield... This girl is an experienced skier, runner, and has written several articles on the sport for Metropolitan dailies... She says she had rather ski than eat!

THOUGHTS WHILE SKING—We were glad to see a much-needed Ski Patrol on Cranmore Mountain over the week-end. While this country and our skiers must be protected, we must be protected from too much of this, and it should be checked, even if reckless runners have to be ordered off the slope, or sent to ski school!... That fellow who comes down a slope with a pipe in his mouth may end up with the pipe in his stomach... Girls! Turbans look chic while skiing, but why wear skirts until you cut falls to a minimum... GLACE works so well, firemen may paint poles with it to slide down easier!... The Hochgebirge Ski Club of Boston more than covered themselves with glory in the ESSC Slalom, as members and former Olympic skiers Bob Livermore, Alex Bright and Sam Wakeman finished one, two and three!...

CARNIVAL CHATTER: Biggest event scheduled for the coming week-end calendar in New Hampshire is the second annual WINTER CARNIVAL at OSSIPEE, sponsored by the Ossipee Sports Development Association at the new $14,000 ski slopes... More than 25 clubs and organizations have been invited to compete in the various slalom and down-hill teams and open races... Winners will receive coveted prizes... The Carnival Queen will be chosen Saturday night at a gala supper and ski dance, where colorful costumes for skiing will brighten the ball... Outdoor events will be concentrated on one slope, while the other slope will be open for general skiing, next to the 1350 foot tow. Here, a large heated log cabin at the foot has a rest room, huge fireplace, and lunch bar... There will be fun for all at this ski spot...

Providing prayers to St. Peter are answered locally, the most largely-attended event of its kind in New England, the Mount Hood Winter Carnival at Melrose, Mass., will take place Saturday and Sunday... Spectacular and unusual features will highlight the sparkling program... Top-notch ski jumpers will soar skywards, aiming their skis for a close-contested Scholastic Ski Meet on Saturday, and other races the following day... Jumpers carrying red fire will fly through a flaming hoop... As a climax, Miss Mount Hood will be named, a title which will be bestowed on the young lady judged the prettiest in attendance...

Leaf's Bow Again To Kraut Line

period. Woody Dumart, who was sent off in the last minute of the previous period, was still in the box when the Bruins broke the tie.

While the Leafs were milling around in Boston territory, Jack Shewchuk cleared the puck by banking it off the side boards and Art Jackson, by virtue of a great burst of speed, beat his opponents to the disc and went in and back handed a shot into the cage.

Three minutes later the Krauts put on a three-man attack, which was the feature play of the night. Bobby Bauer started the play and passed to Milt Schmidt, who, spotting Woody Dumart in the clear and about 15 feet out from the Leafs' net, relayed the disc to the big left wing and Broda was beat for the third time!

Milt Schmidt set up the next scoring play, after intercepting a Toronto pass in his own zone. He broke down the ice with Bauer, pulled the Toronto defense out of position, and then passed right on Bobby's stick. Bang, went the shot and into the cage flew the puck for the fourth and final goal of one of the wildest games of the year.

SKI VILLAGE PLANNED AT FRANCONIA NOTCH

FRANCONIA, N. H., Jan. 24—Construction of a Tyrolean-type ski chalet village here by Sig. Buchmayr, prominent ski instructor, and Baron Hubert von Panitz, young Austrian nobleman who is said to be well known in European ski circles, has just been announced.

Some 450 acres of land on the northwest slopes of Cannon mountain in Franconia Notch have been purchased for the development, which is to be known as the Franconia Mittersill.

The property is located between the Richard Taft racing ski trail and the Tucker Brook ski trail, at elevations ranging from 1200 feet to 1900 feet, and the Cannon Mountain aerial tramway is only about a quarter mile to the south. The plot is adjacent to the Franconia National State reservation and the White Mountain National forest. It is said that the new development in Franconia will vie with the best known European and American resorts as a gathering place for socialites and people at wealth.

This winter Buchmayr and Von Panitz are operating "Cockcrow Lodge" in Franconia. Among their recent guests have been Princess Louise Mdivani, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Genney, socially prominent New Yorkers; Mr. and Mrs. Felix Warburg of the well known banking family; Mr. and Mrs. John Schiff, and George Baker, Jr.

McCoy Wants $40,000 Bonus

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (INS)—Benny McCoy, rookie second baseman, has wired the Chicago White Sox he is willing to sign with the club for a $40,000 bonus and a three-year contract at $10,000 per year.

McCoy was declared a free agent recently when Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis cracked down on the Detroit Tigers' farm system. McCoy has had offers from at least ten clubs in both leagues, some bids for his signature reportedly ranging up to $35,000.

Friday Midnight Last Chance To Enter Silver Skates Derby

By OLYMPIAN

Today, tomorrow, Friday at midnight—that's all the time the skaters of New England have left to get their entries in for the great Silver Skates Derby under the combined auspices of the Boston American-Record-Advertiser in the Boston Garden on Sunday afternoon February 4th.

No entry will be received after midnight next Friday, Jan. 26. More than 400 knights and ladies of the steel blades, ranging in age from a little lad of six to a veteran of 60 and coming from all over New England, the big cities, the small villages, isolated backwoods farms in the icy fastnesses of Northern Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, already have filed their entries for the great speed skating carnival.

Remember the last chance to capture some of the most beautiful and costly prizes ever awarded expires at mid-night on Friday. There will be prizes for all. Here they are:

WOW! WHAT PRIZES.

One pair of silver skates to the first prize winners in all seven of the Derbies.

Gold medals to second and third prize winners in all seven races.

The Boston American Trophy to the winner of the Men's Senior Derby.

The Bess Ehrhardt Cup to the winner of the Women's Senior Derby.

The Daily Record Trophy to the winner of the Boys' Intermediate Derby.

The Sonja Henie Cup to the winner of the Girls' Intermediate Derby.

A pair of the coveted Alfred Johnson speed skates donated by the courtesy of John C. Brine Co. to the boy finishing second in the Boys' Intermediate Derby.

Another pair of the Alfred Johnson speed skates donated by John C. Brine Co. to the girl finishing second in the Girls' Intermediate Derby.

The Boston American Plaque to the winner of the Team Trophy, the club whose skaters score 8 for first, 3 for second and 1 for third.

Diamond studded medal to the winner of the lap prize in the Men's Senior Derby, the man finishing the race who leads the most laps during the contest.

William C. Hill, secretary of the New England Skating Association, also announces that through the courtesy of the Middle Atlantic Skating Association, transportation will be furnished the winner of the Men's Senior Derby to New York to compete in the ice races in Madison Square Garden on Monday night, Feb. 6.

Can you beat that prize list, skaters? You said it—it can't be done!

FAMOUS LABELS ENTER

Late entries include the famous LeBel of Madgen, Ct. Leo, Jr., and Leo, Sr., and Doris Hazlett, from the same town, New England Girls' Intermediate champion, Leo LeBel, Jr., won the New American junior championship in the Lake Placid carnival. The wonderfully fleet lad of ten years has entered the Midget Derby for the Silver Skates. His father will answer the call to post in the Men's Derby.

Besides contesting in the Derbies the LeBels will give an exhibition of barrel jumping that will equal the stunts of the famous professional skaters whose acts will be interspersed throughout the program in the great carnival in the Boston Garden.

North American Junior champion, and Leo Lebel, Sr. All three will compete in annual Silver Skates Derby at Garden, Feb. 4. The LeBels for the past two years have thrilled skating enthusiasts with their barrel-skating skill.

Mike Karakas Quits Hawks' Farm When Salary Cut to League Size

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Mike Karakas didn't mind tending goal as a minor league hockey player so long as he got a big league salary.

But when the paycheck was sliced to minor league proportions Mike quit, and now is without a job. Karakas, Chicago Blackhawks goalie for four years, was shipped to the club's Providence, R. I., farm late in December.

The Hawks kept his salary up to big league figures while they were trying out his successor, Paul Goodman. Now they're satisfied Goodman has the stuff to stick, so Karakas became just another minor league.

Providence sent him back to the Hawks yesterday. Pres. William J. Tobin said, "We can't make him play," and added, "we have no place for him with the Blackhawks."
